Innovations to continue on Shuttle's eighth trip

By EDGAR H. PEREZ

Two more significant "firsts" are planned for the Space Shuttle's eighth mission set for late August following two significant "firsts" credited to the seventh mission which concluded June 24.

The first Shuttle night landing is planned at Edwards Air Force Base in California at the conclusion of the four-day Space Transportation System-Eight (STS-8) mission.

Also on STS-8, Gulon Bluford will become America's first black astronaut to fly in space.

Mission Specialist Sally Ride was America's first woman to achieve orbit on STS-7 in June.

Also during STS-7, a Canadian-built Remote Manipulator Arm performed the first deployment and retrieval exercise with a unique space platform called the Shuttle Pallet Satellite.

The exercise verified the robot arm's ability to take satellites from the orbiter's payload bay and position them accurately in space, according to the National Space Technology Laboratories' monthly magazine "Lagniappe."

The arm was controlled by the astronauts using hand controls in the orbiter's aft flight deck.

In addition, Space Shuttle Challenger's five-member crew for STS-7 was the largest number of astronauts ever launched aboard the Shuttle to date.

Robert Crippen, pilot of STS-1, was commander of STS-7 and Rick Hauck was pilot. The other crew members included Mission Specialists John Fabian, Dr. Norman Thagard and Dr. Ride.

Challenger's three main engines, which were accepted for flight in testing at NSTL, have performed flawlessly during the orbiter's first two flights, Lagniappe reports.

The only major objective the crew was unable to achieve was the first spaceship landing on the three mile runway at Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Unacceptable weather on June 24 forced diversion of the landing to Edwards AFB.

Five days later Challenger was returned across country atop a modified Boeing 747 to Kennedy where it is being readied for its third flight—STS-8 when Mississippi native Richard Truly will serve as commander.

Voting machines prepared

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Charles Gottschalk, Hancock Election Commission secretary and primary coordinator, says the new voting machines should save them from four to five hours.

There are 71 voting machines to be used in 26 precincts.

The machines are being kept upstairs in the courthouse under lock and key so they can't be tampered with said Gottschalk.

A card is punched with the number the voter chooses and is then transferred to a tabulating machine.

"Instead of taking all night to count the votes," said Gottschalk, "the tape in the tabulating machine counts them as fast as you can feed in the cards."

"This is the machine that has reduced the time by four or five hours."

"It will take a little longer this year to post the totals because there are 95 candidates this year," Gottschalk added.

"The next day a copy of the chart is sent to the Democratic executive committee, one to the secretary of state and one to the circuit clerk."

"The only thing left to do there is make up the checks for the poll workers."

Gottschalk noted that effective July 1 of this year the fee for poll workers was increased from $30 per diem to $40 per diem.

Poll workers are picked by the democratic election committee from a list of volunteers said Gottschalk.

For the November election the poll workers are chosen by the election committee. A lot of the poll workers are retired people who have offered their services.

Judge Thomas lenient in first offender's case

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Ten Year Thomas' as Circuit Court Judge James E. Thomas has come to be known, can sometimes be lenient as proven in court on Wednesday.

Following a plea of guilty to a charge of burglary, Donald Joseph Carver, 20, of BaySide Park, was asked by Judge Thomas if he was aware of the rights he was giving up by pleading guilty.

Thomas said, "You will give up your right to a trial by jury."

"Your right to be present during the course of your trial."

"Your right to pick your own jury to insure that there is no prejudice against you."

"Your right to kick six people off the jury for whatever reason you may have."

"Your right to have your attorney file whatever motions he feels may help you."

"Your right to call witnesses on your behalf."

"Your right to have your attorney cross examine any witnesses against you."

"Your right to testify in your own behalf. However, you don't have to and no one can force you to."

"Your right to appeal the case."

Thomas said, "Each of these rights are given up if you decide to plead guilty."

Continuing, Thomas said, "I become the final judge."

Carver was accused of breaking and entering into the Waveland Elementary School property on March 28, 1982, and stealing meats, hash browns, and chicken fried steaks.

Thomas asked Carver what he did with the food. Carver told him he sold it.

Thomas said, "Did anyone force you to plead guilty or has anyone promised you anything for pleading guilty?"

Carver's answer, "No."

Thomas told Carver the penalty for a crime such as he pleaded guilty to was seven years in the state penitentiary.

The state's recommendation was that Carver be placed on probation for three years.

Thomas said that because this was Carver's first offense placing him in the custody of the state department of corrections for seven years with a suspended sentence and putting him on probation for three years.

Thomas concluded by telling Carver, "Remember, while you are on probation a traffic ticket can get you put in Parchman."

"All I am asking you is to follow the law just like everyone else has to."

"Just like I have to," Thomas ended.

Arraignment waived for ex-school officials

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Arraignment was waived and a trial date was set for two former trustees of the Hancock County School District in Circuit Court on Monday.

Judge Kosta N. Vlahos set their trials for October 17.

Woodrow Ladner and Louie Ladner were indicted by the January Grand Jury on charges of fraudulently receiving $500 travel allowances while they served on the Hancock County School Board.

According to the indictment, they were not entitled to attend a conference conducted in Nashville so they represented themselves as Harlin Hill and James Pair, assistant superintendents, in order to receive the expense checks.

Arraignment was postponed three times when the Ladners asked for delays because they had not yet hired an attorney.

The most recent postponement was last week when they told the judge that the attorney they had hired, Robert Drake, had withdrawn from their case because of a conflict of interest. Drake represents the school board in a civil case pending in chancery court.

Vlahos told the two that it has been seven months since their indictments and ordered them to appear in court on Monday.

When they appeared on Monday the judge waived their arraignment and set their trial for Oct. 17.

The civil case charges that former Hancock County Superintendent Billy D. Sills; former board members Louie Ladner, Woodrow Ladner, and Oris Ladner; and present board members Monvel Cuevas, and Johnny Banks violated state laws when awarding contracts for the repair of tornado damaged Gulfview Elementary School in the summer of 1980.

The suit asks that the defendants repay the school district $370,959, the amount paid for the repair of the school.

Miss Hospitality finals slated Saturday evening

Contestants from communities and counties all over Mississippi are on the Gulf Coast Wednesday for the 1983 Miss Hospitality Pageant.

A pageant briefing Wednesday followed by the first rehearsal for coronation ceremonies Saturday night, July 30, will launch the 69 contestants into a whirlwind week of activities.

In addition to judging and rehearsals, trips to Eight Flags Entertainment Park, Gulf Marine State Park and Beauvoir are in store for the girls.

Other functions include luncheons in Biloxi at the Broadwater Beach, Biloxi Hilton and Royal d'Iberville, headquarters hotel for the pageant, as well as a hayride and barbecue at Royal Gulf Hills Resort in Ocean Springs.

Sponsored by the Division of Tourism, Mississippi Department of Economic Development, the Miss Hospitality program is in its 34th year. Contestants were chosen in local pageants and will be judged on personality, intelligence, poise and speaking ability.

The young lady selected this week will look forward to a year of travel, a wardrobe and a scholarship from a participating school. She will represent Mississippi as a state with numerous tourist destinations and as a state with a positive business climate.

Miss Hospitality Renee Henderson of Columbus and Lieutenant Governor Brad Dye will crown the winner Saturday in the Coast Coliseum in Biloxi.

Two accomplished entertainers and an outstanding musical group will add their exceptional talents to the pageant ceremonies.

Special guest star for the 34th annual pageant is Dorothy Moore, popular Mississippi recording artist. Joining her and the 69 contestants on the Coliseum stage will be featured entertainer Doug Schwandner of Nashville.

Scheduled for pre-coronation entertainment at 7:30 p.m. are The 1984 Louisiana World Exposition Musical Ambassadors and Pete the Pelican.

A native of Jackson, Ms. Moore's recording, "Misty Blue" and "I Believe," were nominated for Grammy Awards in 1976 and 1977. She received two gold records in the U.S. and Canada plus a platinum record in Great Britain for "Misty Blue."

In 1977, she was honored with the Rhythm and Blues Award for Best Female Vocalist of the Year.

She was featured artist on several national television programs, including "American Bandstand" and "Soul Train," and also at the London Palladium. Last year, Ms. Moore completed a tour of the Caribbean with singer Percy Sledge.

Singer and actor Doug Schwandner is a Cincinnati, Ohio, native who has performed in numerous dinner theatre productions and in nightclubs. His television credits include appearances on a Cincinnati variety show, several cable tv productions as well as commercials.

Representing the 1984 World's Fair, the Musical Ambassadors were selected in 1982 from among New Orleans' top musicians to travel around the country promoting the exposition, which opens next May. Pete the Pelican, the official Fair mascot, will land his unique abilities to their performance prior to the ceremonies.

Sponsored by the Mississippi Department of Economic Development, Division of Tourism, the pageant draws contestants from communities and counties throughout the state. Mississippi's new Miss Hospitality will be crowned near the end of the ceremonies by Lt. Governor Brad Dye and 1983 Miss Hospitality Renee Henderson.

Coronation ceremonies are free to the public, and general admission tickets may be obtained at the Coast Coliseum box office through Saturday, July 30.

George Williams, Tourism Division Director, said that although the ceremonies officially begin at 8 p.m., the performance of the Musical Ambassadors at 7:30 will hopefully encourage people to be in their seats early. "This year's line-up of entertainment will make this one of the most outstanding pageant productions in the region," he said.

Money Talk

By Norine Barnes

According to a survey by Yankelovich, Shelly, and White, 54 percent of American families argue "a lot" about money.

Many psychologists suggest that family money fights are not about money at all. Instead, the underlying issue is often one of power or control. This power struggle may be between parent and child, couples and their in-laws, or husband and wife.

Between husband and wife, the question of who controls the money sometimes substitutes for the more basic question of who controls the marriage.

If money fights are putting a strain on your marriage, consider the following steps:

1. Discuss what is important to you. List your values in order and compare your list with your spouse's list. This makes compromise possible.

2. Put your plan on paper. When all income and outgo is in writing, verbal misunderstandings are less likely.

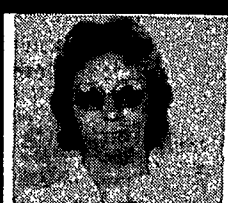

3. Avoid placing blame for past mistakes. Stick to the present issue and how it might be resolved.

4. Have these financial discussions when both of you are relatively rested and free of outside distractions.

5. If all else fails, seek the help of a financial counselor. Cooperative Extension Service offers this free, educational, confidential service. Just call 388-4710 for an appointment.

Quotables by Cuevas

A big thank you is in order for the so many who participated in the drive to raise the necessary expense money for the Bay St. Louis Babe Ruth 13-year-old Mississippi champs to attend the regional play in Sarasota, Fla.

Yesterday morning it was a very, very happy group of 13-year-olds who boarded a bus for the tournament.

The local team which represents Mississippi in the double elimination tournament will begin play Friday night.

We know there will be several supporters from our area in the stands cheering for our favorites.

The local team was presented a Mississippi state flag by Representative J.P. Compretta to take to Florida for the tournament.

We think it is a big honor to have a team from Bay St. Louis representing our state.

Just think, this is the second year in a row that Bay St. Louis has had the state champions in the 13-year-old Babe Ruth play.

The Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139 of Bay St. Louis is in the process of constructing a monument in memory of those from Hancock County who were killed in action during World War I, World War II, the Korean Conflict, and the Vietnam Campaign.

John Wilkerson, post adjutant, is chairman of the committee, and he requests anyone knowing of any Hancock County resident being killed in action during any of the four wars to contact him.

Research by Wilkerson has revealed several from Hancock County who were killed in action, but Wilkerson wants to make sure everyone is included in the monument.

Wilkerson can be reached at 467-6098.

It seems the Visitors Center at the National Space Technology Laboratories has been very busy this year. Showing an increase of 27,000 over the same period last year tells us the visitors center personnel have been really busy.

We have made several tours at NSTL, yet there are many folks living in the area who have never been there.

If you haven't visited the facility, you really do not know what you are missing.

The Visitors Center is open Monday through Friday, except holidays, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

We know the number of visitors is expected to increase in 1984 when the World's Fair will be in New Orleans.

While on the subject of the World's Fair, it was good to see our neighbor to the north, Canada will have a display.

It seems we will have a lot of things to see at the fair when it will only be an hour away.

We are keeping our fingers crossed that the railroad commuter service will be operating for the fair.

It sure would be good to travel through the Louisiana marshes as we did when we were kids on the old Louisville & Nashville trains so many times.

We know Delmar Wilcox has been working very hard to get the commuter service in operation.

There are times when one thinks it is really a small world.

Saturday night I was viewing numerous photos taken by my niece Amy Monti while she was on a recent seven-country tour.

I came to a photo of Amy and her friend Beth Kelley taken in front of the Tower of London with a guard.

The photo really caught my attention, as the person's face was very familiar, as his photo was in The Sea Coast Echo's Thursday edition.

The photo of the girls was with Yeoman Warder Peter A. Harding, who is visiting his sister Valerie Fisher of Waveland.

Harding is known as a Beefeater, one of an elite 38 who guard the priceless Crown Jewels of England.

When the photo was taken in England, Harding did not know the group of students were from his sister's neighborhood.

The world is getting smaller and smaller.

Tonight the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a 'Business After Hours' at 6-7 p.m. at the Waveland Resort Inn.

We know there are some folks unable to make the monthly Morning Editions of the Chamber, but they may be able to make the evening get-together.

Waveland resident responds to Bay mayor's request for hospital proposal input

To the Editor and Hancock Supervisors:

Please, Supervisors, think hard before you consider Mayor Bennett's plans for enlarging the hospital.

Bay St. Louis, Waveland, in fact all of Hancock County are growing. Let us be ready for this growth. No matter where the new hospital is located it should be a building and grounds with a future that all of the county can be proud of and not a patched up job.

While all this building is going on and the repairing of streets what happens to the really sick, or someone that needs emergency care quickly?

Would you like all that noise and commotion if you were really sick. What would you do—close the hospital while it is being overhauled and loose that revenue?

Seems to me that if the present hospital could use the county home and the public health grounds for a parking lot it would be better (when the new hospital is completed) to sell these buildings.

They could become nursing or retirement homes.

Take this money plus what it would cost for new streets and apply it to reduce the cost of the new hospital.

Build the new hospital three or four floors high; leave the upper floors unfinished until needed; also have enough parking places and when our cities grow we would be ready.

Another thing, I can't see if the mayor wants to fix the dip in the street leading to the present hospital—why wait until the hospital is enlarged.

It should have been done years ago and the hospital would not have been isolated when we have had weather.

Mayor Bennett asked that the supervisors 'should' hear from the people—Well, the above is my opinion.

Sincerely,
Violette Cobb Bradford

Some doctors' lack of bedside manner spoils fine atmosphere created by hospital staff

Dear Sir:

During my recent stay at HGH I found the nursing staff to be outstanding in every way.

They provided a pleasant atmosphere where in some patients' cases it was an unpleasant situation.

The entire hospital staff from administration to housekeeping did their very best to make their patients as comfortable as possible.

On the other hand I found some of the doctors even though under extreme pressure could learn a few bedside manners and tactfulness when speaking to patients.

I feel the entire hospital staff works far too hard to provide a pleasant atmosphere to allow a harsh, untactful attitude from some staff doctors to put them one step behind their goal of making HGH a fine hospital.

After all, everyone in the hospital is under pressure and trying very hard to make the best of the situation.

All in all I found HGH to provide excellent patient care and the nurses could teach the doctors a thing or two about bedside manners.

Also, all rules concerning visitors, smoking, etc. etc. should be clarified upon admittance so as not to have any conflict at a later date.

Keep up the good work HGH especially the nursing staff, because the community needs you.

Teaching colleague pays tribute to the late Andrews Wilkinson

July 25, 1983

Dear Editor,

As a friend of Mr. A. M. Wilkinson, I would like to thank you for the excellent front-page article about his life and death. As an addition, I would like to pay a personal tribute to him as a friend in education.

It was my privilege to work on numerous occasions with Mr. Wilkinson for a period of several years.

Though he was often criticized and misunderstood he never considered the possibility of withdrawing or quitting.

He fought long and tirelessly for better education in our community simply because he cared for the students he taught.

He wanted to see our community progress.

He, among others, knew what has been announced so loudly recently, that our community and state will not progress economically until our educational system meets the needs of its citizens.

It was to the meeting of these needs in the lives of the boys and girls of our community that he was dedicated.

School board meetings were of primary interest to him. He attended them faithfully and spoke often in behalf of teachers and better education.

Regardless of the atmosphere of these meetings he was always a gentleman.

Would that we had more citizens, not just teachers, as dedicated as he.

It is with respect and love that I pay tribute to my fellow teacher for a job well done.

Heart Answers

WHAT IS A PACEMAKER?

The heart has a natural pacemaker that consists of a small mass of specialized cells producing electrical impulses that cause the heart to beat. An artificial pacemaker is an electrical device that can substitute for a defective natural pacemaker and control the heart's beat by a series of rhythmic electrical discharges. An artificial pacemaker is a small battery-powered unit usually implanted under the skin. It sends electrical impulses through tiny wires to the heart to control the heart's rate and rhythm of contraction. Contact your local American Heart Association for more information.

Zoning: An idea tried and found defective

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, entitled "The Zoning Frontier" by Jack Harris, assistant research economist at the Texas Real Estate Center at Texas A&M University, is applied to The Sea Coast Echo by Public Research Syndicate of Claremont, Calif.

Theme: Zoning is a defective land use device.

In Bryan, Tex., a rapidly growing, central Texas town, things often look a little different than they do in many other parts of the country.

Most folks here consider a man's home his domain and that he should be able to do pretty much as he pleases with his own property.

For the most part, government is tolerated which governs only a little. Efforts to enlarge its influence can only mean less of the good things in life.

At the same time, Bryan is undergoing growing pains. New subdivisions have grown up in the surrounding pastureland. And because growth needs new jobs, several corporations have been attracted to the area.

In the outside world, this situation would provide some lively evenings for the planning commission as local citizens rant and rave at the requisite zoning hearings. But Bryan has no public hearings because Bryan has no zoning.

Not that the idea has not occurred to the citizenry. Indeed it has been floated past the voters on several occasions, through always unsuccessfully.

Zoning is still a radical concept here: a drastic step not to be taken lightly.

Sure College Station, the university town immediately to the south, has it. That is okay for the professors and college students. Bryan is a distinctly blue-collar town and "real men" don't need zoning.

With new growth, the issue of zoning confronts the city fathers once again. Those living in the new subdivisions want some protection from the prospect of living next to an electronics factory.

They do not think zoning is such a bad idea and are starting to pressure the city to act. The city council is beginning to entertain the idea of a new referendum.

Should zoning eventually come to Bryan, it cannot really be considered progress. While the city may be growing more sympathetic to the device, much of the rest of the country is awakening to its deficiencies.

Zoning was introduced in American cities in the 20s as an answer to urban congestion. With this new tool, it was contended, the wonders of proper civic design could be achieved.

The city could be neatly arranged so that inharmonious land uses need never conflict. Growth would be orderly and according to the superior vision of the urban planners.

Of course, the planners were only a small part of the picture. The zoning game was played by those with real stakes in the outcome.

Special interests found zoning to be especially useful in protecting their positions. Where ordinances were most effective, they served to restrict the mobility of those seeking a better life.

They turned communities into exclusive country clubs; pretty, yet forbidding.

Even in their milder form, land use controls were instrumental in making all housing a bit more expensive than need be.

It became obvious that there was much room for reform of the basic zoning act. Surely such a noble idea need not serve so many ignoble ends.

The American Law Institute labored for years on a model land development code. The fruits of their efforts finally emerged as a catalog of zoning clutches gathered from around the country.

The resulting collection seemed to reflect the dreams of urban planners but not the reality of real estate markets nor the capabilities of most zoning administrators.

The basic idea of zoning is to prevent what economists call "externalities." In simple terms, these are things which your neighbor does which indirectly affect you, like burning old rubber tires.

Without an ordinance against burning tires, you could still file a lawsuit to enjoin your neighbor from this activity. However, this resort might be expensive, and you also risk the chance of losing the suit. If burning were against the law, you would not have to bother.

A zoning ordinance, however, has to be able to handle all potential externalities. It does this, not by listing all activities which might aggravate the neighbors, but by listing types of land uses which are thought to be compatible.

Thus, it might be construed that your tire-burning neighbor is actually conducting a land-fill operation in a residential area and, therefore, is violating the zoning.

Of course, a neighbor operating a quiet accounting business may also be in violation. On the other hand, there may be many activities which would not appreciate which are perfectly legal under the ordinance.

Professor Bernard Siegan, a longtime critic of zoning, thinks there is a better way. Individual neighborhoods could have covenants written into the land deeds to set standards for development. These covenants could be tailored to the locality and would constitute a contract between the landowner and the rest of the neighborhood.

In addition, a small set of specific nuisance laws could directly cover the more onerous externalities.

Siegan's study, "Land Use Without Zoning," discusses the merits of such an approach using the example of Houston, the only major American city without zoning.

It would be ironic for Bryan to join the zoning clique when the tide seems to be going in the opposite direction. It would be especially ironic given the large and rather successful experiment in nonzoning just down the highway in Houston.

Bryan's city fathers consider themselves conservatives. But is this what it means to be conservative: to adopt an idea only after it has been tried and found defective?

Growth of mass media tied to modern living conditions

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is the result of a project funded by the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions are those of the author and not those of either organization.

By Will Norton
Journalism Dept.
University of Mississippi
Sometimes we think the communication industry is only what is in the morning newspaper or what we see on television.

We don't realize that the communication industry includes many things.

It is one reason the United States still is a world leader. Anthony Smith noted that, as of December 1980, 2,500 satellites are in orbit, American organizations and companies hold nine tenths of all the records in databanks, and IBM has 70 percent of all installations in the world.

Information is valuable, and it is a vital aspect of America's economy strength.

In fact, information is valuable for each of us whether we live in Mississippi or New York City.

If we know that a savings and loan is going to close, we can withdraw money before the bankruptcy. If we know about income tax regulations that affect our returns, we can save ourselves taxes. If we know exercises to strengthen heart muscles, we can do them to live longer and be more healthy.

Information is valuable, and a great deal of information is available on TV and radio broadcasts, in magazines, newspapers, and books. Nonetheless, the average Mississippian probably does not think about the importance of the media for himself or for the development of Mississippi.

Scholars have found that consumption of mass media and modern living conditions are closely associated. For example, the high level of individual exposure and a strong attachment to mass media are two conditions in modern industrial societies.

In other words, at least some exposure to mass media is a characteristic and possibly even a requirement of membership in a modern society.

1. When nations are ranked according to levels of economic development in terms of per capita income, the rankings closely parallel the availability of media. For example, media are not as available in Zaire as they are in the United States, and per capita income is not as high in Zaire as in the United States.

2. The distribution of mass media correlates highly with literacy rates, urbanization, industrialization, etc. These are indices associated with modern living conditions.

We can see this even within the United States. The more highly industrialized areas of the country have more media organizations. Usually these areas are more urbanized and have more people who can read and write.

Thus, there are more media organizations, magazines, advertising agencies, newspapers, and TV and radio stations in Atlanta than in the entire state of Mississippi which is not as urban or as industrialized.

Obviously, information is valuable, and the information industries are vital to the development of the state of Mississippi.

I am Gary L. Bennett. I am seeking the office of Constable Beat 2. In the last few days of my campaign, I am asking the citizens of Hancock County Beat 2 to vote for me in the August 2 Primary.

I feel that I am the most qualified man for the job. I developed an interest in law enforcement four years ago. I have worked for the Hancock County Sheriff's Department for the past 3 1/2 years. I have averaged from one to three nights a week on my own time. In addition to working for the Sheriff's Department, I have attended an accident investigation school with the Mississippi State Highway Patrol. I have completed the NRA Police Handgun qualification course and I have attended seminars in relation to other aspects of law enforcement. I feel that these qualifications would enable me to do a good job as your constable.

I would like to take this opportunity to make a personal apology if I failed to see you in my campaign, it was hard and the time was short due to the redistricting.

As the campaign for sheriff is coming to a close I can sincerely say that I have enjoyed making this race and appreciate the wonderful hospitality of the many people of the County who have given me encouragement and support. I wish I could have talked personally with every voter in Hancock County, but since this will be impossible, I earnestly invite all my friends to persuade their friends and neighbors to support my candidacy.

It is with full understanding of the responsibilities and the duties of the Sheriff's Office that I seek this important position. I will cooperate and work in harmony with other police officers.

I know that I cannot perform miracles, but with the help of good qualified trained deputies and with the cooperation of the public, I can improve the image of Hancock County and of the Sheriff's office by eliminating our county of our greatest danger - drugs which will reduce crime. We will be working hard to get the pushers and sellers and bring them before the courts so that they can be prosecuted and put out of business. This will reduce or cut off the supply to users which will reduce our high crime rate now in Hancock County.

I will set up a substation in the county what will operate twenty-four (24) hours a day to give the people outside the municipalities better and faster service.

In 1934, when I was a senior at St. Stanislaus High School I was elected as secretary of my class.

In 1973, while I was serving as sheriff, the Hancock County Sheriff's Department received the Merit Award for Outstanding Law Enforcement in the State of Mississippi. This is the first and only award ever received by Hancock County in Law Enforcement.

Five new store managers transferred to Hancock County and love the Coast

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Five new store managers here in Hancock County all seem to have two things in common. One, they all started at the bottom and worked their way up, and two, they all love the area.

Jitney Jungle, TGY, Otasco, Big B Drug Store, and National Food Store have all gotten new managers within the last month.

James Dykes, 43, is the new manager of Jitney Jungle. Before coming to Bay St. Louis he worked at another branch in Gulfport.

He's been here for two weeks and says he loves the Bay. "The people are so friendly," he said, and added, "When I was working at a branch store in Natchez it was almost impossible to make friends with the people. If you weren't born in Natchez you just weren't accepted. After six or eight months my next-door neighbor finally decided to say hello."

Dykes, who has managed stores all over the state, said he started in the grocery business in 1959 as a part-time bag boy. He laughed however and said his part-time job was 42 hours a week.

Originally born in Richton, Dykes said he's been with Jitney Jungle for six years and enjoys working with the company very much.

Dykes graduated from Dragons Business School in Jackson.

Donnie Freeman is the new store manager at Otasco's. He and his wife, Janet, have three sons, Jared, 5; and twins, Colin and Kyle, 4 months old.

Freeman has been with Otasco for nine years and came here to the Bay from a branch store in d'Iberville.

He was born and raised in Bay St. Louis and is happy to be back.

He graduated from Bay High School and attended Pearl River Junior College.

While he worked in North Biloxi he commuted from the Bay. He says his gas bill will certainly decrease now that he's back home.

Monday was his first day at the Waveland store as manager.

TGY also has a new manager, Keith Simmons.

Simmons, 26, and his wife, Theresa, have two children, Stacy, 3, and Lacy 1. His home town is Biloxi.

Simmons has worked for TGY for 10 years. He started while he was still in high school as a stock clerk.

He says he's worked at just about every branch of the company on the coast.

His last position was manager of the Pops Ferry store in the Pops Ferry Shopping Center in Biloxi.

Simmons said he ran the Bay St. Louis store for about a year and a half and was then transferred to the Long Beach Store, so he's familiar already with Hancock County. He says he loves it over here.

Big B Drug Store is now being run by Danny Williams, the new manager.

Williams, 35, came to the Coast from Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Born in Memphis, Tennessee, he says he loves the Coast, too.

He and his wife, Bonnie, live in Pass Christian with their three children, Wayne, 15; Sherri, 12; and Michael 8.

He said he started with Big B in February, before that he worked for Walgreens Drug Store.

Williams started in the retail business in 1964 and became a manager in 1969.

He's been at the Waveland branch since June 24.

John Harden, 37, is the new store manager at National Food Store in Waveland. He has been there about two weeks.

Harden and his wife, Barbara, have two children, Christina, 11; and Sean, 8. Before coming to the Waveland store he was manager at the Long Beach branch. He was at that store for six years.

He said he's been with National for 19 years and began as a bag boy.

He says of the people, "I find the people here very nice. I'm looking forward to serving them."

Harden came to the Coast from Mobile, Ala. where he said he worked in every National store in Mobile.

He said, "The local people here are quite different from the tourists that come over from New Orleans. He said the local people are more steady they come in and buy their necessities. The New Orleans patrons are more carefree and partying types. The come in for snacks, chips and beer."

"I want to serve the people with high quality and low prices. I want to be able to offer variety and friendly service," Harden said.

RE-ELECT BERT COURREGE Board Of Supervisors DISTRICT ONE HANCOCK COUNTY

I would like to thank each of you in District I for the warm reception that my wife and I have received while campaigning. It has been an honor to serve you for the past 7½ years as Supervisor.

I would like to review some of the questions I encountered while campaigning.

1. WHY WAS THE SEAWALL TAX USED TO RETIRE THE PORT & HARBOR BONDS?

I was not in office when this was done, but I have researched its history. At that time the Seawall was on the State Aid Program and needed no local funding. We very much needed jobs in the County and this tax was means of creating jobs. Although the national economy has effected our Port & Harbor's unemployment, we still have many people working there and can look forward to much growth and employment as economy recovers.

2.WHY DON'T YOU SUPPORT THE COUNTY SYSTEM?

ALL of the road and drainage responsibility would be taken out of the hands of your elected Supervisor and placed in the hands of one appointed County Administrator. If this man neglected his duties in any one District, we would have no recourse. At the present time the Beat Supervisors and cities do help each other with equipment creating a modified form of unit system. However, if the voters of Hancock County wanted a referendum, I would be happy to follow their wishes.

I'm sorry if I missed anyone in the course of campaigning, but if you have any further questions, feel free to call on me. Thank you for your past support and with your continued support we can win August 2, 1983.

Thank you,

In every position Breaux has held in his lifetime, he has been a success.

THESE ARE THE EXAMPLES

- A successful dairyman

- A successful organizer of the Annual Gumbo Festival
- A successful manager of the Gulf Coast Dairymen's Association
- A successful businessman in oil support services
- A success in the formation of the Hancock County Farmers Market
- A success in securing and raising funds for county and civic organizations
- These and many more are the successes of Breaux.

Candidates answer questions concerning judge's position

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Candidates for the position of Justice Court Judge gathered together at a political forum conducted Wednesday evening at the Waveland American Legion.

The forum, sponsored by Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, was moderated by John Scaffidi, chamber director.

Questions were presented to a panel of three for screening before the session.

Candidates attending the forum were, Buford Ladner, Hilda Bourg, and Joseph Dobson.

Dobson spoke first introducing himself saying, "I have served as constable for four years and justice of the peace for eight years. I know the job and it's not an easy job."

He continued, "I have judged many cases and I have been fair."

"I can say that during my time in office I attended 12 to 14 seminars giving me an outlook on the judges' position that the other candidates don't have."

Ladner introduced himself saying, "If I'm elected as your judge for the next four years I will be fair."

"Any time day or night if anyone needs my assistance they can reach me. I'll have a beeper and a telephone in my car."

"I am concerned about the community and what goes on in it."

Bourg started by telling her audience, "Just in case you don't know the system has been changed from five judges to two."

"I am on the Bay St. Louis side," said Bourg.

"I have a bachelor's degree in science, a master's degree and a doctorate."

"I have served as president of my community, Diamondhead. I have been a school administrator and I have taught government and social studies."

"I have not been a judge before but I am teachable and can handle this job."

"I have children and I am interested in this community. Consider me for your justice court judge."

The first question asked the candidates was, "How much time do you plan to devote to this job?"

Dobson answered saying, "Full time.

Six months when my daddy was ill, was the only time I was not readily available. I did not resign from my job. I still had court every Tuesday night."

"Once again the only time that Dobson wasn't available was when my daddy was sick."

Bourg spoke, "Well, I plan on making it a full time job. I have talked with attorneys and their main beef is they can't find the judge."

"I will be a full time judge. I am a woman, I know but, I have a strong backbone."

Ladner said, "Full time. When anyone wants me they will be able to reach me."

The next question was, "What particular qualifications do you have to be a justice court judge and what will be your responsibilities in that office?"

Ladner replied, "I don't believe in telling people when they call up and ask about what the cost is for a fine saying, "Just bring your pocketbook and make sure it's full of money."

"I will bound people over to the grand jury if its called for. I know of a rape case that should have been but wasn't."

Dobson answered, "First, I have the background. I have two years of college at LSU. I am a Christian."

"I am fair and I have been a judge for eight years."

"The office of the judge tries misdemeanors. The judge only hears felon cases to see if it should be bound over to the grand jury."

Bourg responded, "Well, I stated my education and experience. To be a good Hancock County citizen is a qualification. I have been that."

I have been United Way chairman."

"I would like to get into the classrooms and teach the children what a judge is."

Accident victim identified as Bay St. Louis resident

New Orleans police identified a man killed late Saturday in an automobile-truck collision as being from Bay St. Louis.

Lee Bergess, 37, died when his car smashed into the back of a parked tractor-trailer rig, police said.

However, Echo investigation has found no trace that Bergess lived in Bay St. Louis and no relatives could be located.

Bergess was traveling eastbound on Chef Menteur Highway when he drove through the safety flares put out by the truck driver and hit the rig, police said.

Johnnie Szales, the truck driver, told police the brakes locked on his truck and he pulled onto the shoulder, turned on the rig's emergency flashers and put out flares to alert oncoming drivers.

No charges were filed.

Emotional drain cited as common pitfall of single parent

Dr. Robert Weiss, one of the nation's leading experts on single parents, explained some of the problems these parents, 90 percent of whom are women, have in raising their children.

Speaking during a recent workshop sponsored by the University of Southern Mississippi Graduate School of Social Work and those who work with them, Weiss emphasized the financial and emotional strains on single parents.

"Single parent households are different from families with step parents and two parent households, but all can work as places to raise children. All parents care about their children, but single parents, who were previously married, have special reason for devotion to their children because their children are all that remain of their families," said the University of Massachusetts sociology professor and lecturer at Harvard Medical School.

The major problem is that the single parent with too much to do and too much responsibility can become depleted emotionally.

With two parent households, he said, there is a support system inside the household, someone to turn to when one parent is overloaded. Turning to the children does not always work so the single parent must find support outside the home — either family, other single parents or from professionals who work with single parents.

Single parents can also find themselves financially desperate, said the author of "Going It Alone: The Family Life and Social Situation of the Single Parent". "We find that middle income single parents while suffering as much as a 50 percent drop in income often do have payments from the father, family support, workskills or assets such as a house."

For lower income parents things can get very desperate very fast with nothing to fall back on and if there is no financial assistance they may have to give up their children in one way or another.

The workshop offered networking as a way of helping the single parent address and cope with these emotional management and financial problems of single parenting.

The Hattiesburg Parents Without Partners organization helped in identifying issues of concern to single parents in the area and in planning the workshop, according to Dr. Shirley Jones, dean of the Graduate School of Social Work.

Humanics Association of Jackson and Atlanta provided a grant to assist with Dr. Weiss' transportation.

ELECT JAMES H. (Jimmy) THORNTON SUPERVISOR DISTRICT ONE HANCOCK COUNTY

I would like to announce my Political Platform as a candidate for Board of Supervisor of District One.

ROADS: The county has X amount of dollars for material to black top or gravel our roads. As supervisor I plan to black top as many as funds will allow, starting with the most needy (most traveled and used by children who ride school buses) and to gravel as many others as possible.

DRAINAGE: Approximately 99% of the ditches in Beat One need to be cleaned and in some places even re-dug and once this is done not wait 3 or 4 years to do it again, but maintain them on a regular basis. If a culvert is stopped up, clean it, and if necessary, replace it. How else can you get water to drain?

BEACHES: A commission has recently been formed to acquire federal funding to repump our sand beaches. In my opinion this commission should have been put together years ago. Camille was the biggest destructor to the beach and it has been deteriorating ever since. As your next Supervisor I will help in every way possible to speed up this program and when it is accomplished, I will personally see that our beach is maintained on a regular basis.

SIGNS: Initiate a program for installing road and street signs throughout our district to better aid our police, Mobile Medic, and fire department units, in reaching a person in distress. I am sure that there are not enough funds to do this all at one time, but if we do even 10, 20 or 30 signs per year, it will eventually be 100% complete. But if we do not even make an effort it will never become a reality.

JOB: I believe it to be outrageous and costly for our fellow neighbors to have to travel for employment. (I have done this for some 12 to 13 years). Hancock County has great potential to bring industrial, commercial and residential work to this area. We have the Port and Harbor site, NASA, the new ammunition plant, and our soon to be beautiful beaches to add to our already one of a kind Gulf Coast.

★ These are just some of the programs and new ideas that as your next full-time Supervisor I will be working toward. I also want you, the people of District One to know that I welcome all comments and suggestions that may also further the progress of Hancock County. I believe that by visiting with the local civic groups I can learn first-hand what the particular problems are that face each community.

BACKGROUND: I work for Landis Construction Company, located in New Orleans, Louisiana.

I began there as a laborer with a shovel in my hands. Since then I have been a time keeper, handling business transmittals, ordering and delivering of material and payroll. My next step was carpenter, carpenter foreman, general carpenter foreman, and now assistant superintendent.

The jobs that I have been affiliated with as assistant superintendent usually last 14 to 20 months, and range between 6 to 16 million dollars. We've always finished the jobs ahead of schedule, and with money left over. I never see the actual dollar bill but with my signature alone, I have the authority to order and buy whatever material is needed for the job.

This is just to show you what confidence and trust this company has in me, and I hope to win the same trust and confidence from you, the people of Beat One, Hancock County.

I also acquired an associates in science degree in building technology and safety. This was done by working days and attending school at night for 3½ years maintaining a 3.5 average.

I feel my work record shows that I have the Education and the Ability to lead men and also that I am not afraid to accept a new challenge.

LET'S GET HANCOCK COUNTY ON THE MOVE

In the past few weeks we as voters of Hancock County were confronted with many candidates seeking election to public office. It is our duty and responsibility as qualified voters to choose the candidates who are BEST QUALIFIED and whose MAIN INTERESTS are of the people of Hancock County and who will work in the best interest of our community, county, state and country.

If elected I will be available to ALL the people ALL of the time as a full time WORKING SUPERVISOR with the best interest of our community. I would consider it a great honor and privilege to serve you the people of District One-Hancock County as your next Supervisor.

In this campaign I have tried to speak to every elector of District One, to those I was unable to contact, I earnestly solicit your vote and support.

With your help and support we can once again make District One and the entire County of Hancock a better place to live.

PLEASE WEIGH THE QUALIFICATIONS AND SINCERITY OF EACH CANDIDATE FOR EACH OFFICE BEFORE CASTING YOUR VOTE IN THE AUG. 2 DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY.

Election officials say absentee voting abused

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Before going to work off shore, Herschel Paul Spiers, of Necaise Crossing, came to the courthouse Wednesday to punch in his absentee ballot.

A life-long resident of Hancock County, Spiers is in the Lee Town precinct. Spiers and his wife, Barbary have two children, Ronnie, 17, and Herschel Ray, 20, both from Necaise Crossing.

Spiers works for Transworld Building Company out of Lafayette, La. He said they work seven days off shore and are home for seven days.

"I am voting because I think it's my civic duty," said Spiers.

Jerry Heitzmann, circuit clerk, said, "Absentee voting can have its good points, but it's been badly misused."

"The main problem is there's no deadline on how long a person can be out of the county and still have voting privileges," Heitzmann said.

"In this election we have people who have lived out of state for years," said Charles Gottschalk, Hancock Election Commission secretary and primary coordinator.

"Conversely to that people who are on vacation, visiting sick relatives, or have to be out of town for other reasons can't vote absentee."

"The only reasons acceptable for voting absentee are, a person is away at school, employed temporarily out of the county, or in military service," said Heitzmann.

If a person has been working out of the county for years, as long as he states that the job is temporary he is still entitled to vote as an absentee," Heitzmann explained.

"The law is unjust, because certain people can only take vacations at certain times. These people are faced with the choice of losing their voting privilege or giving up an out of county vacation," added Heitzmann.

Gottschalk said, "The trouble is the election laws of the state of Mississippi are obsolete and the main problem is going to be changing them."

Gottschalk continued, "We are the only state that has to get approval by congress to change the voting legislation. Mississippi is the whipping boy of U.S. voting laws."

"Mississippi is discriminated against by the federal government and it all goes back to segregation," added Gottschalk.

"Although it's not true on the coast, the federal government feels that Mississippi is still discriminatory."

"Discrimination is the main reason federal representatives are being sent down here to check on the voting precincts," Gottschalk continued.

VOTING ABSENTEE—Herschel Paul Spiers, of Necaise Crossing, gets ready to punch in his absentee voting card at the Hancock County Courthouse on Wednesday. Spiers will be working off shore for the Transworld Building Company, Lafayette, La. on the day of the primaries which makes him eligible for absentee voting. He said he is voting because he thinks it is his civic duty. (Staff photo by June M. Heydt)

Senate panel seeks funding for damaged oyster reef repair

By JUNE M. HEYDT

A Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, at the request of Mississippi Republican Senator Thad Cochran, has recommended $2.5 million to help restore oyster beds in a three-state area of the Gulf Coast.

The commerce, justice, and state subcommittee included funding to help restore the devastated oyster beds.

Senator Cochran said he was pleased the appropriations panel responded favorably to the request for emergency help.

Mississippi will receive at least $500,000 under the bill, although specific allocations have not been finalized.

Richard Leard, director of the Mississippi Bureau of Marine Resources in Long Beach, said that $500,000 would be sufficient to restore the oyster beds that were destroyed earlier this year when fresh water from the flooding Pearl River and the opened Bonnet Carré Spillway lowered the salinity of the water.

"If environmental factors are favorable, I expect the reefs to recover within two years," Leard said.

He said an estimated $10 to $12 million worth of oysters were killed.

The bill is expected to be approved by the full Senate Appropriations Committee and the full Senate before Congress recesses in two weeks.

The House version of the bill appropriating money for the Departments of Commerce, Justice and State does not include funds to replenish the oyster beds.

However, an amendment to the bill will be proposed by Rep. John Breaux, Democrat from Louisiana and chairman of the House Subcommittee on Fisheries and Wildlife Conservation, when it reaches the House floor providing the $2.5 million to help states restore the oysters.

The House bill is now in the Rules Committee.

Tim Smith, counsel for the House Fisheries and Wildlife Subcommittee, said he has been assured by house leaders in the Appropriations Committee that the oyster relief funds will be included in the final version of the House bill.

MURTAGH, JR.
ASSESSOR-TAX COLLECTOR

I have had the pleasure of serving the people of HANCOCK COUNTY in the ASSESSOR-TAX COLLECTOR office for the past TWELVE years, SIX as your Assessor-Tax Collector and SIX as Chief Deputy Tax Collector under the late Assessor-Tax Collector George E. Heitzmann.

I am married to the former Beryl Bourgeois and we are the parents of eight children, Beth Goelner, Mary Douglas Chevis, Evelyn Yarborough, Anne Meadows, Terry Willson, Abbie Hearn, David Murtagh and Carrie Murtagh. We have twelve grandchildren.

I graduated from St. Stanislaus in 1942 and entered the U.S. Army upon graduation. I served for two years in the Pacific Theater of Operations.

During the past several years I have prepared myself for the complexities of the assessing office by successfully completing courses in Property Assessment Valuation, The Approaches to Value, Mapping and Personal Property. The Tax Commission requires that each assessing office have at least one certified assessment evaluator. I have been certified by the Mississippi State Tax Commission as an Assessment Evaluator.

My present duties consist of the operation of the Hancock County Assessor office which presently has a 60 million dollar assessment in our county. I am also charged with the responsibility of collecting taxes. At present this office is collecting in excess of two and a half million dollars annually. Audit after State Audit has proven that the collection methods practiced by our office are accurate and up to date.

The County has undertaken the court ordered re-appraisal and decided to conduct this program by using the "In House Method." This method does the job using local personnel thus saving the county and its taxpayers at least a million dollars. I feel that our program will not only be successful but will be a model for other counties to follow. While this program at best is most difficult, we will not only have the trained personnel to complete the program but will have the personnel available to maintain the program in the future. By utilizing and training local talent, your TAX DOLLARS have remained in the county.

The operation of the ASSESSOR-TAX COLLECTOR office is big business, it is your business. I feel that I have the experience and the knowledge to continue to operate these offices in an exemplary manner that will bring credit not only to the county but to its citizens as well.

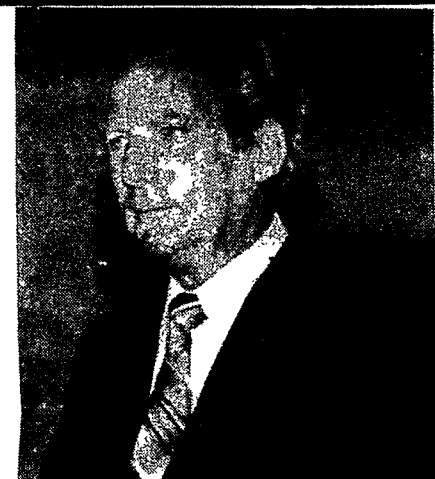

I consider your vote not only a privilege but a bond of trust between us.

HANCOCK COUNTY ROAD MAINTENANCE

- Develop plans and schedules to hard surface all roads within district.
- Schedule will be on the basis of traffic (survey will be conducted during first year in office).
- Schedule will be prepared and published during second year in office.
- I will be able to tell any citizen when he/she can expect to have a hard surface road.
- I will (in the first 90 days) develop and publish road grading schedules.
- I will emphasize immediately the elimination of right-of-way growth which constitutes traffic hazards in curves and at intersections.
- I will establish and maintain adequate landfills. Having done so, I will ask the Sheriff to assist in the vigorous enforcement of little laws, and seek prisoner labor to be used to clean up unsightly trash and litter.
- I will utilize Government surplus equipment to the county's best interest. I will not spend thousands of dollars to purchase equipment when it is available for almost nothing.
- I recognize that road damage which occurs during heavy rains is often due to inadequate drainage. I will work to improve drainage and subsequently reduce maintenance cost. Prisoner labor can be used effectively in this endeavor.

MONEY MANAGEMENT

- I will establish budget priorities on the basis of "what planned activities have the greatest impact on the lives of our citizens, i.e., police protection, fire protection, etc."
- I recognize that juvenile delinquency is many times the by-product of juvenile boredom. I will promote the construction of recreational facilities for our youth.
- I will promote a program designed to make Government more accessible to the elderly and the handicapped. Parking facilities, rest room facilities, stairs and steps, etc., schools should not serve as barriers.
- I will hire qualified and capable people to work for you. I will not utilize your tax resources for personal enhancement.

ATTITUDE

- I will always maintain the attitude that Government services are for the benefit of the taxpayer. I will never allow myself to believe that my services are a favor to you. I will work for your best interest.

Don't try to argue with the operator

Tomorrow South Central Bell's Mississippi customers requesting Directory Assistance will notice a slight difference in the sound of the "voice" quoting telephone numbers.

According to J. N. McGowen, vice president for South Central Bell operations in Mississippi, the voice will actually be generated by a computer program enhancement to the present Directory Assistance operation.

The new service is called Audio Response System, or simply ARS.

With ARS, customers will receive the announcement after an operator has located the desired telephone number and depressed a key activating the computer response.

Every requested directory assistance number is reported once and then automatically repeated. Under the new system, customers can obtain additional operator assistance by remaining on the line. "Customers should appreciate the voice clarity, accent and pace of the recording," McGowen said.

"Announcements such as that used in ARS are becoming quite commonplace in our society today, and we anticipate that our customers will like the consistency and uniformity of announcements with the new system."

RE-ELECT PETE NOTO

J. H. "Buster" STRAHAN
FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE
District 106

"Buster Strahan fights for the rights of the people."

"Although this is my first involvement in any kind of politics, I have long been active in community and civic affairs in my area. I helped organize the Mississippi Landowners Association, the Pearl River County Development Association, and the various volunteer fire departments in our county."

"I have served as volunteer Civil Defense Director and served as a member of the Pearl River County Advisory Committee of the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center. To know what a person will be interested in during the future, you must know what his past interests were."

"If elected, I will continue to be interested in economic development, agricultural needs, mental health, education and other areas of vital concern to our people."

"Currently, I am very interested in the return of mineral rights to the taxpaying landowners, which is why I am now a candidate for representative. This is your fight as well as mine, so people, get involved!"

"This race could be the beginning of a political time bomb in Mississippi. A landslide victory by me in the first primary would send a strong message to every state politician, since every candidate in the state would gladly climb on this bandwagon if he or she saw this was a sure way to get elected. This movement is people helping people and this is what we need right now."

"Let's all rally to the cause and get out and vote. Thank you, and may God bless each and every one!"

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT

- College Degree in Business Administration from Loyola University
- Captain U.S. Army Infantry- 2 yrs.
- Captain U.S. Army Military Police - 2 yrs.
- Deputy Sheriff Hancock County - 5 yrs.
- 13 years of successful business

TO ALL CITIZENS OF HANCOCK COUNTY

Government is big business, and as we draw close to this election it is time for each of you to determine the man best qualified to manage that business.

I feel that with my education background, my many years of successful business experience, and my military and business leadership, I am by far the most qualified man to be your Supervisor in District Two.

My primary goal for Hancock County is to work closely with all members of the Board of Supervisors in order to improve industrial development in our county, thus reducing our staggering unemployment.

In District Two my primary goal is to increase the quality of our road and drainage systems by increasing the amount of maintenance on them. Furthermore, I would employ full-time grass maintenance personnel during the summer months.

I will develop and maintain recreational facilities in each of our communities so that our children can safely occupy some of their idle time.

I have tried to visit with each of you during this campaign and personally answer your questions and ask for your vote and support. If I missed any of you, please consider this my personal request for your vote and support. And I strongly urge each of you to exercise your voice in government by voting August 2, 1983.

OLG-1 takes church tourney

The Bay-Waveland Church Softball League ended its season this past Tuesday with tournament finals.

OLG No. 1, which finished in first place in the regular season, reached the finals by defeating the Episcopalians and OLG No. 2.

OLG No. 2 and the Episcopalians played in the semi-final game to determine OLG No. 1's opponent in the final game.

The Methodists were eliminated first by forfeiting to OLG No. 2 and then losing to the Baptists. The Baptists were eliminated next on losses twice to the Episcopalians.

The Episcopalians gained revenge for their earlier regular season losses to OLG No. 2 by pounding OLG No. 2 (12-2) to easily gain the finals against OLG No. 1.

The Episcopalians, the only team to defeat OLG No. 1 in the regular season, and OLG No. 1 played a tight, see-saw game until OLG No. 1 exploded for four runs in the top of the sixth to take a 7-4 lead.

But the Episcopalians rallied in the bottom of the seventh to win the game 8-7, forcing a second game for the championship.

OLG No. 1 jumped off to a 3-0 lead, and never looked back to win the tournament.

Fatalities mar hunting season

Six Mississippians lost their lives in hunting accidents during the 1982-83 hunting season, according to the Department of Wildlife Conservation.

The agency's hunter/boating education division issued a report attributing one death to hunters using a rifle and five deaths from situations involving shotguns.

The report states that three deaths came during deer season, one during turkey hunting, and two during squirrel season.

The report indicated that most fatalities were the result of poor hunter judgement. This included the following causes of death: victim moved into the line of fire; victim was covered by shooter swinging on game; victim was out of sight of shooter; or the victim was mistaken for a game animal.

One death resulted from each of the following: horseplay with a loaded firearm, and using a defective firearm.

Dove hunting dates proposed

At a meeting of the Commission on Wildlife Conservation in Jackson recently the agency's game division proposed the following dove hunting dates: Sept. 10 - Oct. 15; Oct. 16 - Nov. 1; and Dec. 1 - Jan. 1.

If the dates are approved by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Washington, Mississippi hunters will have 70 days of dove hunting during the upcoming fall and winter hunting period.

All parts of Mississippi will be open for dove hunting during each of the three seasons. There will be no zones.

Since doves are migratory birds, they are protected by federal law, one of which requires hunters to have their shotguns plugged and incapable of holding more than three shells.

The hours for dove hunting are one-half hour before sunrise until sunset. The bag limit is 12 and the possession limit is 24, with no possession limit allowed on opening day. All hunters must have a valid hunting license on their person while hunting.

Other seasons proposed by the five-member Commission include Rail, Oct. 22 - Dec. 30 (70 days); Woodcock, Dec. 24 - Feb. 26 (65 days); Snipe, Nov. 12 - Feb. 26 (107 days); Gallinule, Oct. 22 - Dec. 25 (65 days); and Teal, Sept. 10 - 18 (9 days).

Hunting hours are sunrise until sunset.

Why Niles McNeel.

Circuit Judge, District Attorney,
Trial Lawyer, Federal Law Clerk.
No other candidate for attorney general can match his depth of experience in the law.

Why Niles is the best qualified candidate.

It is no exaggeration to say that when we elect our new attorney general we will be electing the most important lawyer in the state. It will be his responsibility to marshal the legal talents of his staff in defense of the rights and interests not only of Mississippi, but of all its citizens as well. It is a responsibility not to be delegated lightly, nor assigned to someone not prepared for its burdens.

Niles McNeel is the most qualified candidate for attorney general because no other candidate—not one—can match his depth of experience in the law: circuit judge, district attorney, civil and criminal trial lawyer, former law clerk for the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. No aspect of legal experience is foreign to Niles McNeel. And no other candidate can say that.

Why we know Niles will be tough on crime. He already has been. As district attorney for the second-largest district in Mississippi, he's prosecuted the kinds of people who burglarize your homes and try to distribute drugs in your neighborhoods. As circuit judge for seven Mississippi counties, it has been his responsibility to sentence convicted felons to prison. Niles McNeel stands for no-nonsense law enforcement, and his record proves it.

Why Niles is best qualified to fight high utility bills. Every candidate for attorney general wants to keep utility rates down. But that's not enough. When the utility companies go to the Public Service Commission or appeal to the courts for a rate hike, they hire the smartest, toughest, most experienced lawyers money can buy to argue their case. The case for Mississippi's consumers—your side—is argued by the attorney general. The point is obvious: we need an attorney general who's as smart and tough and experienced as the high-priced lawyers the utility companies have on retainer. In this election that means Niles McNeel. Nobody else.

Six arrested on wildlife violations

Six individuals have been arrested by state and federal wildlife enforcement officers for violations involving illegal sales of wildlife and moonshine whiskey.

M. E. Swayze, owner of the Bilbo Fish Market in Natchez was arrested July 20, 1983 in LaPlace, La. Also arrested were Emmanuel Terrell and Ronnie Collins, owners of the Fish King Fish Market in New Orleans, along with Alex Frank and his wife, Sylton Sanders of Jonesville, La.

The subjects were charged with 78 counts of violating Louisiana wildlife statutes. A federal grand jury indictment will be sought in Mississippi soon.

During the extensive enforcement operation, a federal search warrant was executed on the Bilbo Fish Market in Natchez where additional game fish and moonshine whiskey was seized.

State warrants were executed on Fish King Fish Market in New Orleans, and on the residence of Alex Frank in Jonesville.

Affidavits attached to the warrants indicated, along with other violations, that the defendants had violated the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, the Endangered Species Act, the Lacey Act, the Transportation and Transfer of Untaxed Spirits Statute, and conspiracy.

The arrests and search warrants were the results of cooperative efforts of undercover and uniform officers of the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation, the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries, special agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Mississippi Alcohol Beverage Control Division, and detectives of the Natchez Police Department.

During the investigation, state and federal officers, working in a covert capacity, purchased illegal wildlife and moonshine whiskey from the defendants.

Items confiscated included: 1,500 pounds of freshwater bass and other sunfish, including crappie; 100 raccoons; 21 alligator hides; 3 deer; 19 ducks; and moonshine whiskey.

According to Department of Wildlife Conservation officials in Jackson, most of the game fish was purchased in Mississippi and transported to Louisiana. Additional arrests are expected to be made in Mississippi.

"Undercover operations will continue in an effort to combat the illegal commercialization and interstate trafficking of our wildlife resources," said Philip J. Strong, chief of Mississippi's wildlife conservation enforcement.

In addition, Col. Ray Montet, chief of the enforcement division of the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries stated that "With joint cooperative enforcement efforts of this type, we are going to win the battle of wildlife commercialization."

Fighting and Winning Against Crime

As your Attorney General and the State's top legal officer, Bill Allain knows first-hand that crime is a continuous problem. He's been fighting it since his first day in office in 1980. And he and his staff have won over 90% of their criminal cases.

Bill Allain promises to take that fight to the Governor's Office by:

- Increasing the staff of the Bureau of Narcotics.
- Developing a strong, constitutional anti-obscenity law.
- Insuring that criminals, not victims, are punished.
- Naming a strong Board of Corrections to run a tough prison system.
- Decentralizing the prisons without forcing any county to accept a satellite prison that the residents don't want.

Bill Allain has fought for you before. Let's keep him winning against crime. Vote on August 2 to make Bill Allain your fighting Governor.

Four seeking second win in Talladega 500

Four top drivers on NASCAR's Winston Cup circuit will be trying to win their second Talladega 500 on July 31, and all four will be among the favorites to capture the event considered by some as the world's most competitive race.

They are Dick Brooks, Buddy Baker, Neil Bonnett and Ron Bouchard.

For Brooks, this is the 10th anniversary of his only Grand National victory to date. He won the Talladega 500 in 1973 in a story that would make Hollywood script writers drool.

"Two weeks prior to the race, I had set up a deal to drive a car for Tom Pistone and Ralph Moody, but when I got to the track, they weren't there. I waited all day Wednesday and all day Thursday for them, then finally worked out a deal to drive Pete and Jimmy Crawford's Plymouth," recalls Brooks. "It was a strong car, and once we got it handling decent, I knew it had a chance to win the race."

"Well, we did it. Even though I had a touch of flu or something, we went on to win what turned out to be a super race," Brooks said.

Brooks and Junie Donlavey have teamed up for the 1983 season in what began as a one-race deal, The Daytona 500.

After his fifth place finish in the Daytona 500, they decided to stick together a while longer, and now have attracted the sponsorship of Chameleon Sunglasses, to go along with assistance from Sunny King Ford/Honda.

"I'd really like to win the Talladega 500 again. It's a good race, it's a competitive race, and it's pretty prestigious anytime to win at Talladega," Brooks said. "It would certainly mean a great deal to me to win here."

Buddy Baker flexed the muscles in his Valvoline Ford Thunderbird at Daytona in winning the Firecracker 400, his first trip to Victory Lane since he won the 1980 Winston 500.

"Boy, it felt good to win at Daytona, and we will be coming to Talladega with a new outlook and new enthusiasm. I think the Fores will be much more competitive all the rest of the year," said Baker, now driving for the Wood Brothers.

No stranger to Victory Lane at Talladega, four of Baker's 19 career victories have come at the World's Fastest Speedway. He has won three Winston 500's, and the Talladega 500 once, in 1975.

Baker is Talladega's all-time lap leader, all-time money winner and is tied with Darrell Waltrip for most wins, four.

The third member of the "B" Team is hard-charging Neil Bonnett, a local favorite from nearby Bessemer. He won the Talladega 500 in 1980, and that has been the one moment of glory he has had on what he terms his "home track."

"I love Talladega," said Bonnett. "If ever a track was designed for guys like me and Buddy Baker, Talladega is it. I can't stand to drive in a race at Talladega and not go as fast as I know I can. I'm gonna wind it all the way up, and lead every lap I can."

"I think the fans come to see me run up front, and that's what I intend to do. I'll stay there as long as the car will let me."

Bonnett is driving the National Engineering Chevrolet, owned by Warner Hodgdon and prepared by Bob Rahilly and Butch Mock.

The newest member of the "B" Team is Ron Bouchard, looking for career win number two, after winning the Talladega 500 in 1981.

Fans still shake their heads when they recall that thrilling finish, one of the most memorable in NASCAR history, and probably the closest. Bouchard stunned 90,000 fans and a national TV audience by slipping past Waltrip and Terry Labonte in the last 600 yards to win by less than a foot as the three cars came across the line side by side.

"We've had some awfully good times at Talladega, and we've had some bad luck, too," Bouchard said. "There is plenty to shoot for in the Talladega 500, including the second driver to win it twice, but most of all I'd like to win at Talladega because of the prestige. Winning there once is a tremendous accomplishment. Winning there twice puts you in an awfully elite class of drivers."

So, the four members of Talladega's "B" Team all have a great shot at winning it again.

They also have a good chance to be joined by another member, one who has never qualified lower than fifth at Talladega, and who sat on the pole last year.

Geoff Bodine could make the "B" Team a quintet.

The 15th Annual Talladega 500 NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National race takes the green flag at 12:15 p.m. (CDT) Sunday, July 31. The ARCA 200 for the Talladega Super Car Series drivers will start at 1 p.m., Saturday, July 30.

Trinity Christian Academy will begin the 1983-84 school term, September 6, 1983, at 8:30 a.m. The office will be open Wednesday thru Friday, August 2-4, between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. to accept applications and registration for the coming year. Pearl River College's Jim Kearschner has signed a scholarship to play baseball for Southeastern Louisiana University in Hammond.

Kearschner, a Columbia High graduate, who has spent the past two years pitching for the PRC Wildcats, will be playing for the Lions this fall.

While at Pearl River, Kearschner posted a 6-4 overall ledger. His best season was in the spring of '82 when he recorded a 0.92 earn run average, while pitching in 24 games and saving eight ballgames.

Jim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kearschner and he majored in accounting at PRC.

During the past two years the Wildcats won 61 ballgames, while losing only 21.

The Grain Warehouse Program, (there have been no bankrupt grain elevators in Mississippi)... a new Lime Plant at Waynesboro... the Moisture Meter Program with a laboratory at Cleveland... a Meteorology Laboratory at Alcorn... and, a Meat Inspection Laboratory at Jackson.

- We've established a Pulpwood Division to insure the fair and uniform scaling and weighing of pulpwood.

Winning Kentucky coach to lead PRC

Lawrence Smithmier, the head basketball coach of Paducah Community College in Kentucky, accepted the head coaching job of the Pearl River College Wildcats Sunday.

Smithmier will be replacing Billy Holmes, who resigned last month to take the head coaching job at Jersey Village High School in Houston, Texas.

As Paducah's head coach for 10 years, Smithmier's record was 198 wins, against 110 losses. His Paducah teams were either runner-up or Kentucky champs all 10 years. His team was either a finalist or semi-finalist in five National Junior College Region Seven Tournaments.

Smithmier, who was an assistant under present University of Southern Mississippi head coach M.K. Turk, when he was at Copiah-Lincoln Junior College in the early 70s, was named Kentucky Community College Coach of the Year in 1976, '79, '81 and '82.

After leaving Co-Lin in 1973 to take the head position at Paducah, Smithmier immediately led the Kentucky school to the state championship in 1974. His rookie year record as head coach was 20-5. In 1975 his team posted an 11-17 overall record, but still managed to take the runner-up slot in the state. In 1976 Smithmier's record was 22-9, including another state runner-up title and a conference championship. The next year his Paducah team was runner-up again and was a Region Seven semi-finalist. Record wise, 1979 was Smithmier's best year. His team posted a 29-4 record, was conference champion, state tourney runner-up, Region Seven semi-finalist, and was ranked third in the final National NJCAA Poll.

In 1980 Paducah was again conference champs and a Region Seven finalist with a sparkling 23-10 ledger. After the 1981 and '82 seasons Smithmier boasted the Kentucky State championship and the Region Seven finalist standings. Both years the Paducah teams won more than 20 ballgames.

Last year, under Smithmier, Paducah had a 17-15 record and was state runner-up.

"We are very fortunate to get a man with Smithmier's credentials," said Dr. Marvin R. White, president of Pearl River College. "He is not only an excellent basketball coach, as his record indicates, but he is also an excellent classroom teacher."

The Paducah native graduated from the University of Tennessee at Martin in 1969 with a bachelor of science degree in natural science. In 1972 he received his masters of combined science of biology from the University of Mississippi.

"I am very impressed with the facilities at Pearl River," Smithmier said. "I'm also impressed with Pearl River's philosophy of having a strong academic program which is complimented by strong athletic programs."

Smithmier said he wanted to get back to the Southern Mississippi area. "I like this area," Smithmier said, "and I like the positive attitude of the Pearl River faculty and staff."

Smithmier said another reason for leaving Paducah is that Kentucky does not provide out-of-state scholarships, which is not the case of

Mississippi Junior Colleges. "This made it very difficult for me to recruit 'Blue Chippers,'" Smithmier said. "I had to spend much of my time just raising money for scholarships and housing."

Here at Pearl River, Smithmier will be head Wildcat basketball coach and will teach a couple of science classes. He is married to the former Pauline Curling and they have two children, Larry 16 and Joelle, 14.

Last year the PRC Wildcats put together an 8-14 record, however, the year before the Wildcats were 19-6 and were put out of the Region Seven Tournament in Memphis by Smithmier and Paducah.

"We will be winners," Smithmier said. "Pearl River will become a national junior college basketball power."

Southern names Smith football strength coach

Eugene Smith, a graduate assistant football coach at the University of Southern Mississippi for the past two seasons, will become a full-time assistant on coach Jim Carmody's Golden Eagles staff Aug. 1.

The appointment was announced by athletic director Roland Dale following approval by USM president Dr. Aubrey K. Lucas and the state college board.

A graduate of Mississippi College where he was a four-year letterman and an All-Gulf South Conference tight end as a senior, Smith will be strength coach and scout team coach.

"These have been his basic assignments during the two years he has been here while working on a master's degree and it is evident our athletes have benefitted from his expertise," Carmody said.

"I am confident he will continue to do an exceptional job in these areas and as an additional recruiter for us."

"I appreciate Coach Carmody's confidence in me and look forward to the challenge of working full-time with our outstanding young athletes," said Smith, who was an assistant coach at Clinton High School in 1980.

The new Golden Eagles assistant, 25, is single and is the son of Rev. and Mrs. R. Stewart Smith. His father is the pastor of Hattiesburg's Parkway Heights Methodist Church.

Research grants go to 11 at USM

Summer Research Grants have been awarded to 11 University of Southern Mississippi faculty to stimulate scholarly publication.

The grants, awarded by the University Research Council are the equivalent of full summer pay according to academic rank, said Dr. Billy Slay, council chairman.

Four College of Liberal Arts faculty members were selected to receive grants: Mark Clark, an assistant professor of English in the USM Honors College; Michael DeArmy, an assistant professor of philosophy, Edward Wheat and John Van Wingen, both associate professors of political science.

Dr. Clark is working on a paper on Latin and Greek literature and imperial Roman Coinage bearing the personified virtue Spes or Hope. He will trace the changes Spes underwent from the time of the late republic to the military and political crises of the third century.

Dr. DeArmy is researching an article, "William James and James Putnam: Their Exchange of Ideas about the Brain" at the Widener Library of Harvard University. Putnam, a friend of James', became the first professor of neurology at Harvard. Dr. DeArmy is also conducting research at Harvard for a book, "The American Philosophers," with Dr. Elder Lindhal of North Park College in Chicago.

Dr. Wheat is completing a manuscript on "Walt Whitman: A Study in Politics and Literature" which he says will be the only study of Whitman by a political scientist. The manuscript, to be submitted to a university press, will discuss Whitman's life, poetry and his political writings.

Dr. Van Wingen is revising a manuscript for submission to the "American Political Science Review" that will detail a new method to spot shifts in the voting coalitions supporting major parties known as realignment. Such realignments occurred in 1928, 1880, 1896 and 1932. The manuscript will encompass the 1980 election.

Summer grants secured by Science and Technology researchers included: David Creed, an associate professor of Chemistry; Frank Moore, associate professor of Biology and Craig Zaspel, assistant professor of Physics.

Dr. Creed is continuing research on photogalvanic cells which convert visible light to electricity through a complex series of photochemical and thermal reactions.

Dr. Newton Fawcett, co-director of the long range project, and Dr. Creed have developed a new concept in photogalvanic conversion which they originated. If successful, their approach will result in significantly improved and efficient conversion methods.

Dr. Moore is preparing a renewal proposal to the National Science Foundation to continue his research on the mysteries of bird migration. He is also working on three articles on the solar, stellar and geomagnetic cues influencing migration, if the migratory experience of individual birds influences migration and daytime migration of birds which normally migrate at night.

Dr. Zaspel will be studying many important physical properties of a class of material known as magnetic insulators. The theoretical approach used by Zaspel is likely to explain previously unexplained experimental results associated with these classes of compounds. In the field analysis, it is thought that Dr. Zaspel's research will be accurate enough to theoretically predict many physical properties in a number of magnetic insulated materials.

Two Fine Arts professors were recipients of 1983 Summer Grants. Karl Brock, professor of Music at USM and Warren Robertson, associate professor of Theatre and Dance.

Brock aims to produce a translation of Beethoven's opera, "Fidelio," that can be performed in a university situation, as well as in professional surroundings. He hopes the translation will have a degree of success that has yet to be attained by existent productions of "Fidelio" in English.

Robertson's project will involve the completion of "Fern," a children's theatre script about a little girl and her cow, and assessment of children's theatre activities in the state and the production of "Fern" at the Southern Arena Theatre at USM. Robertson also plans to tour "Fern" to regional schools for the deaf as well as to the regular public schools. The approach would be one with "total communication" so that both hearing and hearing impaired children could enjoy the play.

A grant was recently awarded to Gary Jones, associate professor of psychology. Jones will be using the grant to conduct experiments which investigate a person's awareness of their cardiac functions after a heart attack has occurred.

The experiments will examine whether heart attack patients are more aware of their heart beats than volunteers, whether various kinds of normal daily activity affects a heart patient's awareness of their heart's activity and the changes a heart patient goes through after leaving the hospital.

Dr. Stephen Bushardt, associate professor of management was the only College of Business Administration faculty member to receive a grant.

He is working with two data bases, one an 8,500-person AT&T industrial worker data base and a 120-person Forrest General Nurses/Aides data base. The AT&T information will be analyzed to determine the impact of goal setting on internal work motivation and industrial job satisfaction.

The FGH information will examine the impact of sex roles stereotypes on leadership styles and leadership effectiveness.

UNO graduation scheduled

The University of New Orleans 1983 summer commencement will be conducted Saturday at 10 a.m. in the UNO Health and Physical Education Center. It will be the final UNO commencement ceremony to be held in the center, affectionately known as "The Chamber of Horrors." Future ceremonies will be conducted in the university's soon-to-be-completed Lakefront Arena.

Dr. J. Herman Brasseaux, retiring professor and former chairman of the UNO department of accounting, will address the graduates.

Dr. Grasseaux joined the UNO faculty in 1959, shortly after the university opened in September, 1958.

He became the first chairman of the accounting department in 1961, serving in that capacity until 1981 when he returned to full-time teaching.

Under Dr. Brasseaux's leadership, the UNO accounting department became one of the largest in the state and the only one in Louisiana offering a concentrated graduate study in taxation.

According to the State Board of Certified Public Accountants analysis, the percentage of UNO graduates who have passed the CPA examination is approximately 14 percent higher than the state average.

A specialist in auditing and financial accounting, Dr. Brasseaux received his bachelor's degree from Southwestern Louisiana Institute and his master's and doctorate in accounting from Louisiana State University. He served on the auditing standards executive committee of the American Institute of CPAs from 1973 to 1977.

The commencement program will be highlighted by the presentation of four 1983-84 Louisiana State University System awards to UNO faculty members who have distinguished themselves in undergraduate and graduate teaching and research. Also to be presented will be the UNO Alumni Association's "Excellence in Teaching" awards. UNO Acting Chancellor Cooper R. Mackin will preside at the ceremony and LSU System President Martin D. Woodin will confer the degrees.

Delivering the invocation and benediction at the ceremony will be the Rev. W. Earl Hausey, pastor of St. John Institutional Missionary Baptist Church and a former member, LSU Board of Supervisors.

UNO music student David Bernard will sing the national anthem, accompanied by the UNO Summer Band under the direction of Milton Bush.

Principals urge students to acquire study skills

"Don't study what probably won't be on the exam." That might be an obvious piece of advice to students, but it's one that is worth repeating, according to the author of a college-level manual on how to study.

"Study skills are skills for learning. These skills are efficient ways of learning in school and elsewhere," contends Dr. Elaine M. Fitzpatrick, author of How to Study Skills. "Study skills are not a substitute for the work that learning requires. However, their use can make the effort and time you devote to learning more satisfying and rewarding."

The 124-page student manual, which is accompanied by an instructor's guide, is published by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP) and the American Council on Education. It was edited by a group of educators from Harvard University and Milton Academy, a college-preparatory school near Boston.

"There are specific skills to studying and remembering," points out Scott Thomson, executive director, NASSP. "Students need to learn these skills to be successful in school, especially in college."

The new manual is designed specifically for students about to enter a college or university and is recommended for high school juniors and seniors and college freshmen.

"There's a difference between the high school class and the college course, usually quite a difference," cautions author Fitzpatrick, associate professor, Massachusetts Junior College, Brockton, Mass., in an introductory section. "In college, your (students) classes will probably be a lot larger than they were in high school. Often you'll have professors who teach only through lecture. You'll have to spend a lot less time in the classroom, but you'll be expected to devote more time to learning on your own."

The manual includes 11 chapters which specifically deal with how to study and another that recommends ways to prepare for and take an examination. Advice is provided on taking notes, listening, asking useful questions, improving your memory, learning from visuals and gaining from discussions.

Students are also encouraged to identify their best styles of learning and develop them. "Not everyone learns in the same way," writes Fitzpatrick. "In fact, people learn in many different ways. Some people learn best when they can work with something new in a 'hands-on' way. Others prefer to read about something new before they work with it."

She encourages students to determine how they learn best—whether it be from mistakes or by being creative—and incorporate those styles into their studying habits.

Each chapter focuses on specific ways to improve study skills. For example, students are presented five tips on how to gain more information from listening.

"While you listen, ask yourself questions about what the speaker is saying," Fitzpatrick urges in one tip. "Remember: you can think three times as fast as the speaker can talk. (She explained that people talk at about 100-125 words per minute, but can think at a rate of 400 words per minute.) Use your 'extra time' to think about what she or he is saying. Try to make sense of the speaker's message."

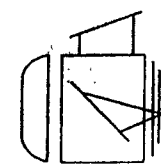

ASCS NEWS

Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service says farm-stored grain under loan must not be removed without permission.

Grain under regular or reserve loan is mortgaged and if it is removed before repayment of the loan or receipt of release authorization, it is considered unauthorized removal and subject to penalty," he said. The penalty consists of immediate repayment of the loan, plus interest, denial of further loans and possible investigation by the Office of the Inspector General.

The ASCS price support loan program provides farmers with operating cash while they bargain or hold their grain for future sales. Variable interest rates are charged and farmers may repay the money before the nine-month maturity date.

Program regulations require that farmers notify ASCS if they intend to sell the grain, or if the grain is out of condition and needs to be moved. If the grain is to be used for feed, the loan must be repaid before it is removed from the storage bin.

Southern Bell, South Central Bell evolve BellSouth

BellSouth Corporation is the name of the new regional holding company that will own Southern Bell and South Central Bell after AT&T's planned Jan. 1, 1984 break-up.

The announcement was made in a nine-state televised press conference originating in Atlanta Tuesday by Wallace R. Bunn, designated chief executive officer of the new corporation.

"We chose the name BellSouth because of the strong link to our Bell heritage—a heritage we cherish," Bunn said. "The Bell name is invaluable to our success as an independent, financially strong corporation. The Bell name and what it represents—tradition, quality, dedication—is known in our communities. The Bell legacy is respected by the financial community."

BellSouth, headquartered in Atlanta, will be one of the nation's largest businesses with an anticipated $21.5 billion in assets, more than 13 million customers, and almost 100,000 employees.

Bunn said the new corporation is excited about the future. "We have the technology, the skills and the location," he said. "We are the right company, in the right place, at the right time."

Bunn said the company spent eight months sifting through some 1,800 names before selecting BellSouth.

Bunn was joined in the announcement by John L. Clendenin, chairman of the board of Southern Bell and chief operating officer-designate of BellSouth; William O. McCoy, chief financial officer-designate of the new company; B. Franklin Skinner, president of Southern Bell; Carl F. Cailey, president of South Central Bell; Hugh B. Jacks, president-designate of the regional services company.

Employers seeking specialized skills

While fewer classified ads stipulate college as a requirement, more employers are looking for persons with specialized skills — skills needed to be a commercial artist, computer programmer, data processor, electronics technician, medical technologist, or secretary.

"This demand for skills is slowly becoming commonplace in the job market," said Henry Herzing, president of the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools, an educational association representing 500 private career schools.

"Employers prefer to hire trained applicants rather than provide training, so the person with previous training or experience who is skilled and ready to work is the person who usually gets the job."

Because many employers prefer to hire skilled workers, more individuals are attending accredited trade and technical schools to learn the necessary skills it takes to get a good job. Many of these specialized career schools reported enrollment increase of over 15 percent this year.

"Most career schools are independent, small, job-oriented, intensive and student-centered," said Herzing. "Their single mission is to give students job skills to enter and to compete in the job market."

Until recently a college education was considered one of the best ways to prepare for the job market. But now, many students may wonder, as they go off to school, whether a college diploma is worth its price in tuition and several years of missed income.

Between 1968 and 1978, the proportion of college graduates employed in professional and technical occupations declined because the number of jobs did not expand as rapidly as the supply of graduates.

One out of every four college graduates took jobs traditionally filled by someone with less schooling, and more graduates than ever before turned to lower-level clerical, sales, and blue-collar occupations to earn a living.

From 1970 to 1979, 80 percent of the jobs available required training and education while only 20 percent required a four-year degree. "We all learned a valuable lesson from the job market in the '70s," said Herzing.

"A four-year degree does not guarantee a good job. There are unlimited careers to choose from that can be realized without a college degree."

The 1982-83 edition of the Occupational Outlook Handbook, published by the U.S. Department of Labor, predicts that greater efforts in energy development and industrial production will lead to a demand for engineers and technicians.

The medical professions, which include such occupations as dental assistant, medical assistant and medical lab technician, are expected to grow as the health services industry grows.

And, the computer field is projected to grow rapidly, along with a demand for systems analysts, programmers, and computer service technicians.

NATTS SCHOOL Schools accredited by NATTS, now located in 45 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, have been providing students with specialized training since 1965.

According to Herzing, the growing success of these schools can be summed up in a word, "sensitivity." They respond directly to a student's needs and desires.

"The most important question in the trade and technical schools is 'where are the jobs?'" said Herzing.

"It's vital to our schools to know how advances in technology and shifts in the labor force are going to affect particular occupations. Unlike colleges and universities, we can't stay in business if our graduates must ultimately settle for jobs which are not related to their area of training."

According to Herzing, another reason accredited trade and technical schools have done so well is because these schools offer success on the students' terms.

"We work hard to eliminate the reasons which have traditionally discouraged individuals from continuing their training beyond high school," said Herzing. "Our students know that they will get more specialized training and finish quicker; thereby, earning more money sooner."

According to labor experts, during the '80s the demand for skilled workers will continue; the youth labor force will decline thus easing the stiff competition for entry-level jobs; and once again more college graduates will be available than will be needed to fill jobs that require a college degree.

For persons planning for the careers of the '80s, knowing something about projected growths will be a tremendous asset. But employment prospects alone, according to Herzing, should never be the sole reason for choosing a career.

"In our free handbook, we advise students to take many factors into consideration before choosing a career," said Herzing.

Readers may ask for a free copy of the Handbook of Trade and Technical Careers and Training from: NATTS (Handbook), 2021 K Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20006-1077.

Untouched by Civil War, Natchez boasts largest collection of antebellum structures

Visitors flock to Natchez by the thousands — some in search of history, some looking for Southern hospitality, and some just looking for a brief respite from the fast pace of life.

Natchez has it all! The famed Natchez Trace, a 450 mile highway beginning in Nashville, terminates at this historic little town on the Mississippi River. The famous paddlewheelers, the Mississippi Queen and the Delta Queen, make regular stops at Natchez.

Founded in 1716, Natchez has the dual distinction of being the oldest city on the Mississippi and a center of culture known the world over. Many descendants of the early settlers who came from France, England, and Spain still reside in Natchez, thus continuing its heritage and culture.

Because it was virtually untouched by the ravages of the War Between the States, Natchez has the largest collection of antebellum structures in America. Scores of these mansions open their doors daily for visitors to view their authentic and priceless antiques. Many offer elegant overnight accommodations reminiscent of "Gone with the Wind," and made complete with a delectable Southern breakfast. Quaint historic inns include the recently restored Turkey Feather located in downtown Natchez.

Natchez restaurants have long been noted for their varied cuisine. The famous Carriage House specializes in Mint Juleps, real Southern fried chicken and homemade desserts while the menu at the Post House, located in historic King's Tavern, reflects the rich heritage of this area. For those who lean to a less formal atmosphere, Natchez Under the Hill boasts of Cock of the Walk, where one can enjoy the most talked-about catfish and hushpuppies on the river, and the Natchez Landing, which features the best country barbecue and steaks east of the Mississippi.

Public parks offer golf, tennis and swimming in beautiful settings of moss-draped trees, and the area's woods and lakes provide excellent hunting and fishing. Picknicking on the Mississippi River bluffs or historic Jefferson College is a most relaxing experience. However, many visitors simply enjoy strolling the tree-shaded streets of this old town just feeling the presence of such notables as Lafayette, Andy Jackson, Aaron Burr,

Henry Clay or Jim Bowie. Of special interest this year will be the seventh annual Natchez Fall Pilgrimage, Oct. 8-23 and the second annual "Christmas in Natchez," Dec. 10-17. In addition to day tours of the antebellum mansions, the Fall Pilgrimage will feature the Mississippi Medicine Show, a fun-filled evening of music, dancing and singing and Moonlight and Magnolias, a dinner theatre that recreates the charm and grandeur of old Natchez.

"Christmas in Natchez" is a very special celebration that transports the visitor back to the elaborate Victorian holiday season complete with a display of Christmas trees from around the world. Natchez welcomes its many visitors with genuine warmth and generosity into a world of slow-paced Southern hospitality. Come join us! For further information contact: Natchez Pilgrimage Tours, P. O. Box 347, Natchez, 39120. Phone 800-647-6742 or 601-446-6631.

USM to establish School of Music

The Board of Trustees State Institutions of Higher Learning have approved the creation of a School of Music at the University of Southern Mississippi.

"This creates a professional School of Music which coincides with USM's leadership role in music without additional cost to the university and without hiring additional faculty," said President Dr. Aubrey Lucas.

"School of Music is an accepted title for a professional school the size of ours offering eight different degrees, with 40 full-time artists/faculty and approximately 300 majors," said Dean John Green of the College of Fine Arts.

The degrees offered are the Bachelor and Master of Music, the Bachelor and Master of Music Education, the Specialist's degree in Music Education, the Doctor of Music Education, the Doctor of Philosophy and the Doctor of Musical Arts.

The department of music has been accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music since 1938 and in 1982 was reaccredited for the maximum of 10 years.

The department has had a profound impact on the cultural life of Hattiesburg and USM faculty have provided leadership and talent for the Jackson, Meridian, Tupelo and Gulf Coast Symphonies as well as the Mobile Opera Association and the Pensacola Symphony.

"The goal of the School of Music would be to train students for careers in music and to enhance the quality of life for the university in the larger sense," said Dean Green, "through public performance, compositions, research and instruction.

Other aims and objectives of the school include providing a regional forum for the discussion of problems important to the preservation and advancement of music in the region and to help maintain a position of music study in public schools, churches and universities.

Emphasis areas under the bachelor of music degree are: church music, jazz, music history and literature, organ, percussion, piano, strings, theory-composition, music industry, voice and wind instruments. The bachelor of music education offers emphases in elementary, instrumental, keyboard, vocal and guitar.

The master of music degree includes the areas of applied music (voice, keyboard, band and orchestral instruments), theory and composition and woodwinds. Vocal-Choral music, elementary school music and instrumental music are emphasis areas under the specialist degree.

GIVE YOUR BODY A CAR'S CHANCE
Because the body is such a wonderful self-sustaining machine which heals its own wounds, we are prone to let it run along as best it can until something drastic goes wrong. Car accidents occur every day. There are turn-overs and collisions. The car is taken to have the frame straightened, the dents removed and everything lined up again. But the occupant, unless he has broken bones, merely paints over his bumps and dents and lets his frame go regardless of how badly it may have been twisted out of shape. The body reacts just like any piece of machinery when left in this state. Wear on certain parts is greater and the life of your machine is shortened. The doctor of Chiropractic is your body mechanic, best care of your machine (body) and go to him when your body frame (spine) needs attention.

Army ROTC scholarships available at Southern

Applications are available for high school seniors of 1984 who are interested in four-year Army ROTC Scholarships, said Maj. Clint Conerly, the enrollment coordinator of the Army ROTC at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The scholarships are awarded on a competitive basis to men and women who are planning to enter Army ROTC as college freshmen. In addition to paying for tuition, the scholarships cover costs relating to textbooks, laboratory fees and other purely academic expenses. Cadets who are recipients of these scholarships also receive a subsistence allowance of up to $1,000 each school year.

There will be approximately 1,000 of these scholarships awarded to students who qualify. Those receiving the awards may pursue any course of study leading to a bachelor's degree and may engage in any extracurricular activities that do not interfere with their Military Science (ROTC) requirements.

USM has the largest Army ROTC in the United States, with an enrollment of 1,056 as of the 1983 fall semester, Maj. Conerly said. ROTC students participate in such activities as backpacking, rappelling, camping and marksmanship. In addition to the four-year scholarships, the university through the U.S. Army, offers three and two-year scholarships for students already enrolled in college or for active duty enlisted personnel.

The selection of winners of the four-year scholarships is based on the following criteria: 1. the results of Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or the American College Test (ACT); 2. high school academic standing; 3. extracurricular, leadership and athletic activities; 4. personal interviews.

The average score for a scholarship recipient on his/her ACT is 28, or 1282 on the SAT. Also 90 percent of former winners were in the top 25 percent of their senior class. Over one-half of past scholarship cadets were members of the National Honor Society and varsity letter winners.

The USM Army ROTC has applications for the scholarships available to Mississippi seniors. All forms must be received no later than Dec. 1, 1983, however, applicants who have submitted complete applications and are received in the office by Aug. 15, 1983, will automatically be considered in the early cycle.

Early cycle winners will be announced on or about Oct. 15. If an applicant is not selected for a scholarship in the early cycle, the applicant will automatically be considered for competition in the regular cycle.

For more information about the scholarships or the Army ROTC, write to Maj. Clint Conerly, Southern Station Box 5042, Hattiesburg, MS 39406, or call (601) 266-4456.

JERZY KOSINSKI—novelist, screenwriter, actor, human rights activist, photographer, survivor—has had an utterly unbelievable life.

The magazine said, "Kosinski has lived through some of the strongest direct experience that this century has to offer."

Kosinski was born in Poland. At the age of six he was abandoned, not by choice but because of the Holocaust of World War II. He wandered from village to village in Nazi-occupied eastern Europe. This experience became the basis for his major novel, "The Painted Bird."

At the age of nine he lost the use of his speech due to a brain infection with a virus. Some years later, upon his return, ironically he was speaking.

Kosinski went on to study at the University of St. Louis, where he rejected the official Communist doctrine. He earned a PhD in social psychology and soon became a professor and member of the Academy of Sciences, the state's highest honor.

Thinking of escape from the Iron Curtain, Kosinski invented four fictitious members of the Academy of Sciences to write correspondence on his behalf. After two years of corresponding with various government officials, Kosinski received an official passport to visit the United States. Throughout this time, Kosinski carried a foil-wrapped egg of cyanide, to prevent him from being captured and tortured.

Arriving safely in the U.S., Kosinski worked in various jobs—truck driver, parking lot attendant, cinema projectionist and even as a limousine and racing-car driver for a black nightclub entrepreneur. Kosinski then published two books of nonfiction, the first of which became an instant bestseller, was condensed by "Reader's Digest" and printed in 18 languages.

Kosinski then met Mary Weir, a wealthy widow of a steel magnate from Pittsburgh. After dating for two years, they were married. The marriage lasted for 10 years, ending with Weir's death.

Kosinski has consistently cheated death throughout his life. One night on his way from Paris to Los Angeles via New York, Kosinski's luggage was unloaded off of the plane by mistake. He stayed overnight in New York instead of traveling to his close friend's—Roman Polanski—house as previously planned. That night Charles Manson's Helter-Skelter gang broke in and murdered the five people living there.

In addition, Kosinski has taught English at Princeton and Yale and has been elected president of American PEN, the international society of writers and editors.

Kosinski wrote one of his best books, "Being There," and then transformed it admirably to the screen. "Being There" starred Peter Sellers, Shirley MacLaine and Jack Warden and was directed by Hal Ashby. It received several Academy Award nominations.

Just recently Kosinski made his film acting debut in Warren Beatty's "Reds," which has been rereleased this summer. Kosinski plays the Russian revolutionary leader, Grigori Zinoviev.

After experiences and events such as these who can blame Kosinski for his brutally frank fiction or this terrifying passages that wrap around you like a web. In "The Painted Bird," he writes, "...then rapidly and wordlessly she dragged me toward a remote field. There she dug a deep pit, took off my clothes, and ordered me to jump in."

"While I stood at the bottom, trembling with fever and chill, Olga pushed the earth back into the pit until I was buried up to my neck. Then she trampled the soil around me and bit it with the shovel until the surface was very smooth. After making sure there were no anthills in the vicinity, she made three smoky fires of peat."

"Thus planted in the cold earth, my body cooled completely in a few moments, like the root of a wilting weed. I lost all awareness. Like an abandoned head of cabbage, I became part of the great field."

Happily, in real life, Kosinski found his way out of the pit and into the field of humanity. His works of fiction—"Being There," "Blind Date," "Cockpit," "Passion Play," "The Painted Bird," and "The Devil Tree"—are all timeless classics that must be endured as well as read. Kosinski pushes his readers to the brink, relating one harrowing experience after another. But, since most of Kosinski's fiction is triggered by some actual event, it only goes to prove that we all exist in a game of probability and chance with death just a few steps away.

The upcoming shuttle mission's crew, in addition to Truly and Bluford, are pilot Daniel Brandenstein and mission specialists Dale Gardner and Dr. William Thornton.

STS-8 cargo will include the Indian National Satellite 1 (INSAT-1), a communication and meteorological satellite being carried by Challenger for the Indian Department of Space.

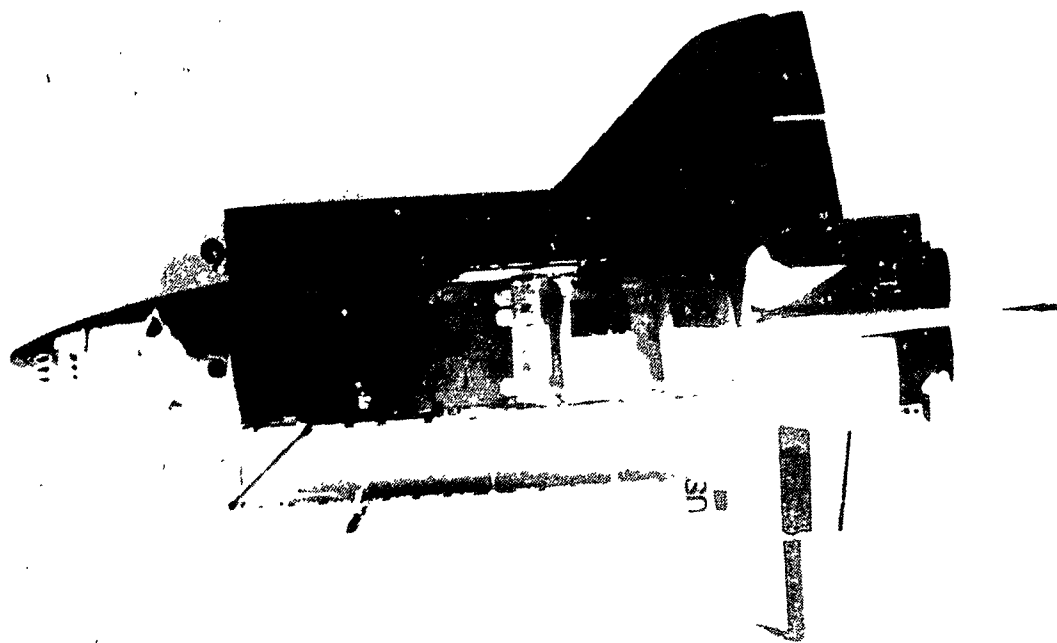

INSAT-1 will be boosted from Challenger's 174-nautical mile orbit to geosynchronous altitude by a Payload Assist Module (PAM), the type which successfully boosted a Canadian communications satellite and a Satellite Business Systems payload from STS-5 in November 1982 and two commercial communications satellites during last month's STS-7 flight.

Maiden flight (STS-6) was in April.

NSTL TESTING

With the acceptance testing of Space Shuttle Columbia's new engine set successfully completed, full power level (FPL) certification testing resumed this month at NSTL, according to Boyce Mix, SSME Program resident manager, Marshall Space Flight Center.

This month in the A-1 test stand, engine 2010 began its third FPL test series with a

The engine will undergo tests of varying durations for a minimum total series run time of 5,000 seconds.

The engine will be tested at the 104 percent thrust level during portions of each firing.

Last month at NSTL, the final test was conducted on the third of Columbia's new flight engines.

Mix said that flight engine 2011 is installed in the orbiter at the Kennedy Space Center. Engine 2018 was shipped to Florida last week and 2019 is scheduled to be shipped later this month.

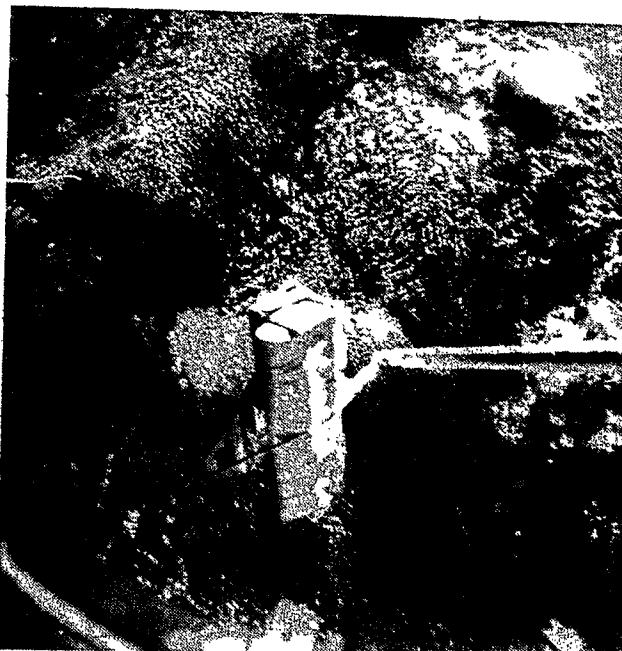

All three engines, which are rated at 104 percent, will power the Columbia during that orbiter's next mission, STS-9, now scheduled for late September.

Mix said that a fourth flight engine—the Columbia's spare—will arrive at NSTL from the Rocketdyne manufacturing plant in California in mid-August.

In all, three sets of Space Shuttle main engines have been certified for flight at NSTL—the original Columbia set, the Challenger's three engines and the Columbia's second flight set.

IT'S A SMALL WORLD—Amy Monti, right, and Beth Kelley, both of Bay St. Louis, pose with Beefeater Peter Harding of London recently outside the Tower of London. Dormitories filled for fall semester at Pearl River

All six Pearl River College dormitories are filled for the fall semester and a waiting list has been started, according to Miller Hammill, dean of student affairs.

"We've dealt with this problem before," said Hammill, "in fact, we have filled the resident halls and had waiting lists the past several years." PRC has three male and three female air-conditioned dormitories which can house 505 students.

Hammill said that in the past, students on the waiting list usually had a room come available soon after school began. "Several rooms will open up because of cancellation or no-shows," Hammill said, "however, until that time, the list will exist."

Hammill attributed the tremendous demand for college housing to the nation's economy, more interest in Pearl River College and because of increased campus activities for students.

The early filling of the resident halls is also a good indication that Pearl River could have another record enrollment. "All indications point to the fact that we will have another tremendous year," Hammill said. Last year PRC's enrollment increased 12 percent.

Room assignments have been made for the fall term. "We've done the best job possible in assigning students to the dorms and roommates they requested," Hammill said, "however, some students were given second and third choices."

Hammill said changes would be possible after everyone gets settled in. "We do allow students to move around after school begins. I just hope everyone will have patience and will cooperate with my department."

Pearl River College does offer a commuter bus system from all points within the six counties which support Pearl River. PRC supporting counties include: Jefferson Davis, Marion, Forrest, Lamar, Pearl River and Hancock.

Physic teacher realizes dream of national program for youth

By PHILIP BREEZE
Extension Service

Jerry Katz has a dream and earlier this month he shared it with Mississippi young people. Katz was a high school physics teacher in New York City in 1976 when he began to dream of a national program administered at the state level and carried out at the local level.

"I was sitting around with some friends and other teachers one evening and sort of dreaming out loud, and I began to talk about organizing clubs all across the country to help young people learn about energy," Katz recalled.

Katz said he had been using a lot of "the standard routines" to make energy education more interesting to his students such as plays, exhibits, skits, club activities all with an energy theme."

His students had responded enthusiastically and Katz began to wonder if his method might work in other schools. With the support and encouragement of his friends, Katz set out to make his dream come true.

His dream was to involve the nation's youth in energy-related clubs. He envisioned school and civic clubs that allowed young people to learn about energy and to teach others in their communities about energy, energy issues and conservation technique.

"Energy is a very important part of our lives, and getting more so each day," Katz said. "Some very important decisions will have to be made in the years to come. I think it's important for the people who will have to make those decisions to have as good an understanding of the issues as possible. Besides, energy is a fascinating field and can be exciting to people from all kinds of backgrounds, not just physics teachers."

Katz resigned his job and spent the next two and a half years working to make his dream a reality and to win the support of Congress.

During those next several months Katz camped at congressmen's doorsteps, cornered energy industry spokespersons to lobby for their support, wrote thousands of letters to educators and legislators in all 50 states, and went broke.

Friends would put him up for weeks at a time and stints as a bartender here and there helped to pay for laundry, haircuts, and more postage.

"It got tough for a long while. It caused a lot of friction between my girlfriend and me and eventually we broke up over it. A lot of my friends told me to forget it, I had given it a good try but I shouldn't ruin my life trying to get a nationwide youth organization off the ground," Katz said.

"But a couple of very important friends encouraged me to keep plugging away, keep trying for just a little longer."

Finally, on March 21, 1980 Katz, reunited with his girlfriend who eventually became his wife, stood in the Oval Office as President Jimmy Carter signed the first National Energy Education Day resolution.

Since then Katz has seen 39 states join his project and Mississippi, he said, is one of the best.

In Mississippi Gov. Winter proclaimed March 18, 1983 as National Energy Education Day in Mississippi, honoring the energy-related efforts of more than 12,000 school-age youths.

Katz came here in person in early July to be part of the Mississippi Youth Energy Symposium coordinated by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. This was the first such gathering in the nation. The symposium was held at Roosevelt State Park and more than 100 young people and adult sponsors attended.

Young people from 4-H Clubs and high school and elementary schools all over the state participated. Everywhere Katz takes his dream he leaves a little bit of it behind, and from places like Mississippi he carries something away with him — reality instead of a dream.

DRUG QUIZ

by Curt Scarborough, Ph.D.

Used by permission; all rights reserved by DATE, St. Louis, Mo.

QUESTION—Though illicit drug use is far from the only problem afflicting U.S. industry, it plainly is throwing sand in the nation's industrial machine. What is the estimated annual cost to industry of drug-abusing employees?

- a) $25 million
- b) $25 billion
- c) $5 million
- d) $5 billion

ANSWER—No one has measured how drug abuse has affected the national output, yet the growth of U.S. productivity has been lagging behind that of other major industrial nations, none of which has a drug problem as serious. Officials estimate that industry is losing as much as $25 billion a year as a result of employees who snort, swallow, inhale, or inject illicit substances. The toll takes the form of slowed productivity, absenteeism, lateness, and irrational decisions.

This $25 billion estimate may be conservative because it does not include hidden costs such as disability pay, workers' compensation, and loss of co-workers' and supervisors' time.

Correct answer — b.

QUESTION Which nation has the highest rate of drug abuse of any developed country on the globe?

- a) Germany
- b) Japan
- c) Soviet Union
- d) United States

ANSWER—West Germany has the most serious heroin problem among European nations, but the situation is worse in America. The Soviet Union has negligible drug problems although it suffers heavily from alcoholism. Japan has the lowest illegal drug consumption of any developed nation.

Correct answer — d.

For further information about alcohol and drug abuse write Dr. Paul G. Jones, II, Executive Director, Christian Action Commission, P.O. Box 530, Jackson, MS 39205.

SUMMER READING—Mike Smith, manager of McDonald's in Waveland, accepts bookmark from Mike Koval, 7, of Pass Christian, son of Bridget Ulrich. Koval turns in his McDonald's bookmark in exchange for a free hamburger. Some 184 children received reading certificates and bookmarks for a free hamburger as part of Hancock County Library System's Summer Reading Program.

Summer Reading Program participation tops 1,100

The Summer Reading Program at the Hancock County Library System concluded with a total attendance of 1,123 children participating in the programs offered at the three libraries.

Of the 387 children who registered, 184 received a certificate of recognition for reaching their reading goal. McDonald's of Waveland is giving a free hamburger to each child who has read 10 or more books.

Activities held at the library in connection with the summer reading program included two feature films, three crafts, a karate demonstration, a talent show and an awards day at each library.

The reading program at the City-County, Waveland and Kiln Libraries from June 6 to July 15 is coordinated annually by the Mississippi Library Commission.

Orientation, testing conducted by PRC

Pearl River Junior College will hold an orientation and testing session for all freshmen and incoming transfer students Friday, Aug. 19, beginning at 8:15 a.m. in the PRC coliseum.

According to Enoch Seal Jr., academic dean, the orientation session will be used to set up basic classes in English, reading and mathematics. "All students will be tested before registration," Seal said, "this will enable us to determine if the student needs to register for these particular classes."

The basic study classes in English, reading and mathematics are designed to help the student reach normal competency levels for college freshmen. "The course enables the student to catch up," Seal said. "It allows them to become full-fledged college freshmen."

The testing session should last until approximately 3 p.m. All scores will be ready by the time of registration in order that advisors can schedule the correct classes.

Seal said another test will be given the first week of class and the student is evaluated again. If the student does well enough, the instructor may recommend transferring the individual to the regular English, math or reading classes. If the student still registers below the norm, he or she will be required to take that class for the entire semester.

"It's very important for students to attend the orientation session," said Seal, "because a freshman or transfer student will not be allowed to register until the tests are taken."

Late registration could mean closed classes, and that, of course, could mean a difficult and undesirable schedule.

Registration by last name appointment begins with sophomores Monday, Aug. 22., freshmen, transfer and former students begin registering at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday and will continue through Wednesday, Aug. 24.

di Benedetto completes year's study in France

Anna di Benedetto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George di Benedetto of Bay St. Louis and an honor graduate of Bay Senior High in 1980 is expected to return Saturday from a year of study and travel in Europe.

Entering her senior year this fall at the University of Mississippi, she spent her junior year at the Université de Franche-Comté in Besancon, France.

The University of Mississippi, in cooperation with the International Student Exchange Program sponsored by Georgetown University, arranges each year for outstanding students to spend their junior year at a foreign university in the country of their choice.

Since Miss di Benedetto is working toward a degree in French, she went to France with a triple purpose—to become fluent in spoken French, to learn as much as possible about the everyday French way of life, and to travel extensively in other European nations.

She chose to study in Besancon, a city in southeastern France near the Swiss border, because of its strategic location as a base from which to visit neighboring countries.

Her travels during holidays and before and after the school term have taken her to England, Switzerland, Holland, Germany, Austria, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg, Andorra, and Monaco.

She spent Christmas in London and Bastille Day in Paris.

She visited Rome and Vatican City, explored Roman ruins all over the south of France, and attended plays produced by the Royal Shakespeare Company in Stratford-upon-Avon.

She renewed acquaintances with Hanneke Hermesen, an exchange student from Holland who graduated from Bay Senior High in 1980, as well as meeting numerous students from other foreign countries, especially from the Middle East, who were also studying in France.

Her extracurricular activities during the past year have included bicycling through the vineyards and the chateau country of the Loire valley, broadcasting on a French radio station, and skiing and feeding reindeer in the Alps.

Sleep research continues at USM

The National Institute of Health has renewed for two years a grant allowing a University of Southern Mississippi psychology professor to continue research on behavioral techniques to control sleep disorders.

Dr. John Harsh was notified recently that the research he and Dr. Pietro Badia of Bowling Green State University in Ohio were doing on control of respiratory behavior during sleep was funded for $235,000.

During the first two years of the research grant a procedure was developed to reliably control respiration of subjects who were asleep.

"To my knowledge, we were the first to do this successfully," said Dr. Harsh, who said the procedure might possibly be used to benefit people with apnea.

Apnea is momentary cessation of breathing during sleep. Usually a person with apnea goes through a cycle of sleeping, ceasing to breathe, waking up to catch his or her breath and going back to sleep to have this cycle begin again. About one to three percent of the population suffer from apnea.

During the first two years of his research Harsh used normal subjects, student and community volunteers. They were trained while awake to take up to four deep breaths upon hearing a moderately pitched tone. Each of the subjects' then spent anywhere from 2 hours napping to two weeks of eight hour nights sleeping in specially equipped rooms.

Electrodes were attached to the subjects' heads and chests to measure brain waves and lung expansion. According to graduate assistant Diane O'Rourke most of the subjects reported hearing only a few of the tones that were presented as many as 100 times a night.

The 150 people tested responded as well during REM (rapid eye movement) sleep, which is associated with dreaming, as they did during non-REM sleep.

Non-REM sleep is divided into transition sleep, stage two sleep in which the sleeper spends about 50 percent of the night and stages three and four which are deep sleep.

"Now that we know we can control breathing during sleep we want to know the extent of the control we can achieve during sleep. Additionally we will soon begin testing subjects with apnea. Some people with apnea have already been successfully tested at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit," he said.

If we have success with this we may attempt to train peo-

Pregnancy in Teen-age Smokers

Teen-age girls who are pregnant and smoke cigarettes face special hazards to both their unborn babies and themselves, Richard L. Naeye, M.D., said recently at an American Heart Association symposium on helping teen-agers cope with smoking.

Young girls within two years after their menarche (their first menstrual period) are still growing themselves, so they compete with their fetuses for available nutrients, explained Dr. Naeye, professor and chairman of pathology at the Pennsylvania State University College of Medicine, Hershey.

"Pregnancy requires a lot more careful attention to nutrition in teen-agers than it does in adults," he said. "Of course teen-agers are more apt to fast and feast during pregnancy — eat a lot, be disturbed by weight gains, then fast," he continued. His analyses of data from the U.S. Collaborative Perinatal Project show that during the last trimester of pregnancy, fasting for more than 24 hours reduces the nutrients available to the fetus and is associated with an increased death rate of fetuses.

But eating well may not protect the fetus from the detrimental effects of smoking, Dr. Naeye warned. Some doctors had assumed that increasing the birthweights of babies by raising the pregnant woman's food intake and by increasing her weight gain ple with apnea to respond to a physiological signal within their bodies that is associated with not breathing."

The procedure he has been developing might also be useful in treating a number of other sleep disorders such as bruxism (grinding of the teeth), enuresis (bedwetting), nocturnal myoclonus (involuntary muscle spasms), and snoring.

Snoring, especially gasping snoring, is a good model for studying obstructive apnea because it involves the obstruction of airways much like apnea.

The research at USM and BGSU is becoming widely known and Dr. Harsh is presenting a paper on his research at the International Sleep Society meeting in Italy this month.

CANCER Answerline

American Cancer Society

A regular feature prepared by the American Cancer Society to help save your life from cancer.

Question: Is surgery the only treatment for bone cancer?

ANSWERline: This is one of the areas in which considerable progress against cancer has been made. Some patients with bone cancer are now being treated successfully by removing and replacing sections of bone, rather than by amputating a leg or an arm. Increasingly, drugs and radiation therapy also are being used in conjunction with surgery, and with dramatic results.

Question: Do women get bladder cancer?

ANSWERline: Yes. But bladder cancer is more prevalent among men by almost three to one. It occurs mostly in persons over 50. In some cases environmental factors, such as compounds and chemicals used in the dye and rubber industries have been implicated in the disease.

Because many chemicals entering the body are eventually excreted (disposed of) in the urine, which may be stored in the bladder for hours at a time, the tissues of this organ are susceptible to the action of cancer-causing substances to which some industrial workers are exposed. Studies also have implicated cigarette smoking in bladder cancer. The treatment of bladder cancer may involve radiation, drugs, surgery, or combinations of the three methods.

Question: I am a young woman and have recently contracted genital herpes which my doctor calls herpes virus Type II. Am I liable to develop cervical cancer?

ANSWERline: Some association has been shown between herpes virus Type II and the development of cervical cancer.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING RELATIVE TO USE OF GENERAL REVENUE SHARING FUNDS

A public hearing was convened at 10:00 a.m. on Monday, July 18, 1983, in the Board Room at the Hancock County Courthouse relative to the use of an estimated $508,188.00 anticipated to be allocated to Hancock County by the Federal government under Public Law 92-512, State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 as amended by Public Law 94-488, State and Local Fiscal Assistance Amendment of 1976.

However, in view of the poor turnout of interested Hancock County citizens, and in view of the Board's desire to receive input from organizations and individual citizens regarding use of revenue sharing funds in relation to the county budget, the Board of Supervisors has continued said hearing until 9:30 a.m. Friday, July 29.

All citizens will be afforded the right to submit written and/or oral comments and questions regarding various uses and expenditures of revenue sharing funds in relationship to the county budget for the next fiscal year, beginning October 1, 1983 and ending September 30, 1984.

LET'S ELECT

TRITON

SUPERVISOR

BEAT 5

- For a modified unit system of government.
- For reduction of taxes by reducing the millage rate.
- For a hurricane protection study to investigate the situation first hand.
- For a supervisor capable of making wise and prudent decisions.
- For a consolidation of county equipment and supplies to save tax dollars.
- For improvement of our beaches along the beach road.
- For a central mechanic and machine garage.
- For a voice in the community that will ask you for input and represent you with honesty and integrity.

Let's Elect A Full Time County Wide Supervisor

Russell Elliott will be available to you when you need him. A supervisor should be interested in and available to the citizens of his county. He should seek their input into the operation of the county. An advisory committee, composed of citizens from each sector of our county, to personally discuss their needs and desires will be implemented.

Russell Elliott will cooperate with cities, unincorporated communities, subdivisions, investors, developers, NSTL and industries, assisting them when requested. All of the above, and private businesses, bring tax dollars into the county and help improve the area. Coordination and planning will make our county strong, while using our abundant resources wisely. Russell Elliott's goal is to accomplish this.

BEAT 5 HANCOCK COUNTY

Elliott

A proven record of honesty, integrity and progressive service to Hancock County.

Since service in World War II, Russell Elliott has been a servant of Hancock County. His record of accomplishments are vast and untiring. He has been active in veteran, civic, political and community service for a span of over three decades. And as a result, Hancock is a better place in which to live.

“A look into the future of Hancock County....”

The Unit System

The overall coordination of our county's departments for maintenance, upkeep and purchases of equipment will mean tremendous savings to you, the tax payer.

Hurricane Protection

Our county is in desperate need of hurricane protection. We've all seen what can happen during a hurricane—most of it due to water damage. We need a Hurricane Protection levee.

Reduction of Your Taxes

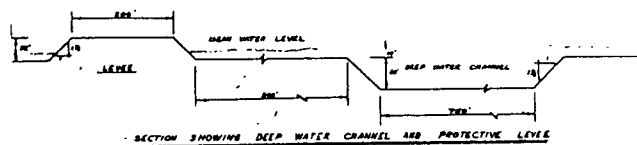

With the recent reappraisal and equalization of assessments because of court mandate, surely more tax money will be paid by most citizens.

“Plan the Work and Work out the Plan”

I will work for a unit system by seeking the cooperation of all supervisors and public officials. By using our available vo-tech facility for maintenance, the county will profit greatly and provide valuable training for students.

Hurricane Protection Design

(Submitted to the Core of Engineers)

Section showing deep water channel and protective fence to be constructed from the Louisiana State Line, extending east

I will work toward lowering the millage for a reduction of your taxes.
